Secondary Spread In Breast Cancer New Aspects Of Breast Cancer Volume 3:

Adjuvant Therapies and Markers of Post-Surgical Minimal Residual Disease I Gianni Bonadonna, G. Mathe, S. E. Salmon, 2012-12-06 P Denoix and G Mathe Approximately 70% of cancer patients relapse after surgery before the 5th year and in most cases for example in breast carcinoma they relapse still later up to the 20th year For some considerable time the strategy of cancer treatment has been limited to the sophistication of surgery radiotherapy combinations that maximally decreased the incidence of local and regional relapses in sites that were within their reach Today the practice of clinical oncology is unthinkable without the active participation of the medical oncologist He is the third man of the clinical oncology team and he has recently focused attention on the fact that most relapses arise from distant metastases due to the proliferation of cells seeded there after having left the primary tumor site at the time of operation and hence are inaccessible to any form of local and or regional treatment On this evidence medical oncologists have proposed the application of medical treatments for disseminated minimal residual disease MRD They have two available means chemotherapy and immunotherapy Medical oncologists in general can be divided into three groups chemotherapists immunotherapists and chemoimmunotherapists The pure chemotherapists who had already cured some malignant neoplasias such as Hodgkin's disease acute lymphoid leukemia placental choriocarcinoma and Wilms tumor thought they might have the means of attacking the residual disease of common cancers

Environmental Health Perspectives ,1993 Secondary Spread in Breast Cancer Basil Arnold Stoll, 1977 Drugs and the Lung Giovanni Cumming, Gordon Cumming, G. Bonsignore, 2013-04-17 This volume records the proceedings at the Sixth School of Thoracic Medicine held at the Ettore Majorana School of International Scientific Culture in June 1982 Foregathered there were a heterogeneous group comprising clinicians pharmacologists pathologists ultra microscopists biochemists and immunologists and they presented the eighteen papers seen in the contents list The discussion which followed each paper was faithfully recorded and where necessary translated and may be found after each author's presentation This free discussion is perhaps the most valuable part of the School of Thoracic Medicine and most clearly defines the present boundaries of knowledge and the directions in which enquiry is being pursued The collaboration of many people made the production of this book possible for translation and the discussion typescript Miss Guilianna de Ferio for the final typing and layout Miss Corinne Wade The illustrations have been dealt with where necessary by Mr John Griffiths and the production of the book was done at The Midhurst Medical Research Institute prior to its delivery to Plenum Press

Ariel,2012-12-06 The many advances in breast cancer research as well as the large quantity of published material make it very difficult to gain insight into the global aspects of cancer management To follow and understand all the new developments is becoming a major challenge For this reason the editors decided to bring together a group of top researchers in breast cancer to provide a comprehensive yet readable conceptual review of the state of the art of breast cancer diagnosis and therapy The proposal to focus the review on the quantitative assessment of the risk at diagnosis the determination of which may permit selective therapies for individual patients was met with enthusiastic approval resulting in the present volume with contributions by the leading investigators in the field While the volume relating to diagnosis published recently focused on efforts leading to refinement at diagnosis of risk criteria sensitive enough to reliably distinguish the low and high risk categories the second volume by providing a review of the main problems and results of therapy given to high risk patients can be considered as a continuation of the first book A refined risk assessment at diagnosis and the application of the most suitable treatments to well selected individuals are the most important steps towards avoiding the present worrisome reality of overtreating the low risk and undertreating the high risk patients The first few chapters of the present volume offer an insight into the general management of early breast cancer     Medical Books and Serials in Print ,1984
