Forster, 2017-05-15 At first sight the subjects of piety and family life may appear to have little in common Yet as the essays in this volume make clear there are in fact a number of shared features and points of contact that make the study of these issues a particularly fertile area for scholars of the Reformation period Whether it be the concept of an individual's relationship with God so often articulated in familial terms the place of domestic devotions or the difficulties that faced families split by rival confessional beliefs and mixed marriages this book demonstrates how piety and family life were interwoven in the social and theological landscape of early modern Europe Inspired by the works of Steven Ozment the volume is divided into two sections each of which deals with a particular concern of his writings The first four chapters address issues of Reformation theology and the medieval heritage whilst the remaining seven examine the spiritual life of families Together they underline how modern scholarship by broadening its conceptual outlook and bringing together seemingly unrelated subjects can provide a more sophisticated understanding of the past The Unfolding Life Howard Munro Longyear, 1901 Confession in the Dialogus Miraculorum of Caesar of Heisterbach Frederick Erdman Jesse Wilde, 1912 An Old Man's Museum Under Construction Richard Leonard, 2022-11-25 There's no available information at this time Author will provide once information is available Looking Inward Jennifer Bryan, 2013-02-12 You must see yourself The exhortation was increasingly familiar to English men and women in the two centuries before the Reformation They encountered it repeatedly in their devotional books the popular guides to spiritual self improvement that were reaching an ever growing readership at the end of the Middle Ages But what did it mean to see oneself What was the nature of the self to be envisioned and what eyes and mirrors were needed to see and know it properly Looking Inward traces a complex network of answers to such questions exploring how English readers between 1350 and 1550 learned to envision examine and change themselves in the mirrors of devotional literature By all accounts it was the most popular literature of the period With literacy on the rise an outpouring of translations and adaptations flowed across traditional boundaries between religious and lay and between female and male audiences As forms of piety changed as social categories became increasingly porous and as the heart became an increasingly privileged and contested location the growth of devotional reading created a crucial arena for the making of literate subjectivities The models of private reading and self reflection constructed therein would have important implications not only for English spirituality but for social political and poetic identities up to the Reformation and beyond In Looking Inward Bryan examines a wide range of devotional and secular texts from works by Walter Hilton Julian of Norwich and Thomas Hoccleve to neglected translations like The Chastising of God s Children and The Pricking of Love She explores the models of identification and imitation through which they sought to reach the inmost selves of their readers and the scripts for spiritual desire that they offered for the cultivation of the heart Illuminating the psychological paradigms at the heart of the genre Bryan provides fresh insights into how late medieval men and women sought to know labor in and profit themselves by means of books
