

THE FUTURE OF THE GIG ECONOMY

While the growth of Airbnb, Uber and Lyft is astounding, the future of the gig economy at large is just as impressive. In 2017, traditional employees (102.7 million) outnumbered those in the gig economy (57.3 million), but those roles are expected to reverse by 2027, when traditional employees (83.4 million) will be edged out by those in the gig economy (86.5 million). ⁽¹³⁾

Service Industries In The New Economy:

Services, the New Economy Thomas M. Stanback, 1981

Service Industries and Regions Juan R.

Cuadrado-Roura, 2013-03-26 The service sector in most advanced economies accounts for up to seventy percent of employment and GDP and given its growing importance has received much research attention over the last two decades. However, not very much attention has been paid to the relationship between this sector and both its territorial impact and regional effects. The main objective of this book is to offer a comprehensive approach to these aspects focusing particularly on the location factors of service industries and the importance of some specific services such as business services and knowledge and information services. The contributions have been prepared by well known experts in the field from a wide number of countries. The focus of all contributions is not only on theoretical aspects but also provides empirical analyses on specific countries and topics such as the geographical concentration, globalization impacts, foreign direct investments and innovation.

The Handbook of Service Industries J. R. Bryson, P. W. Daniels, 2007-01-01 It contains an impressive array of important and useful material that should be familiar to anyone interested in economic growth and change. The potential value to be gained from these collected works is great. James E. Pratt Growth and Change Service activities are now acknowledged as key players in economic development, societal change and public policy worldwide. This exciting Handbook not only contributes to ongoing conceptual debates about the nature of service-led economies and societies; it also pushes back the frontiers of current critical thinking about the role of service activities in urban and regional development and the important research agendas that remain to be addressed. Drawing on both theory and case studies, the contributors are international experts who have written original and stimulating chapters from a number of different disciplinary perspectives. Each chapter seeks to raise awareness of and to provoke debates about the opportunities and challenges presented by the shift to service employment. Providing a truly interdisciplinary analysis, The Handbook of Service Industries will be invaluable to scholars specializing in services research as well as students and researchers in the areas of economics, geography, business and management, sociology, public policy and planning. The policy-making community will also find the Handbook a relevant and useful resource.

New Economy Hans Dietrich von Loeffelholz, Roland Döhrn, Michael Rothgang, Klaus

Löbbecke, Jochen Dehio, Rainer Graskamp, Waike Moos, 2003-11-07 For many observers the beginning of a dynamic economic and stock market upswing in the U.S. in the mid 1990s marked the start of a new era: the times of the new economy. This phenomenon has been under intense discussion ever since both in the political arena as well as among scientists. Thereby the somewhat glamorous term new economy reflects the conviction held by its proponents that the use of new technologies will lead to a never-ending acceleration of technological progress and economic welfare. The origins of this development date back a long time. More than 30 years ago the starting point was the basic innovation: digitization. Production as well as application of information and communications technologies (ICT) are based on this principle. At the beginning of the seventies

the first microprocessor was produced Some ten years later the first personal computer was brought onto the market The commercial use of the Internet has begun in the mid nineties In view of the economic boom in the U S accompanying the introduction of the Internet the question arises as to what extent the new economy actually has exerted lasting positive effects on productivity not only in the United States but also worldwide Inspired by these developments the Federal Ministry of Economics and Technology commissioned RWI Essen to study the driving forces of the new economy In this report the trends of the ICT sector and of the use of ICT products are analyzed with respect to the overall economic effects in Germany in comparison to the U S Further analyses were carried out regarding the intensity and effects of e business Finally the influence of different methods of price measurement on productivity was analysed since this is important for international comparisons of total factor productivity The study culminates in a growth accounting calculation separating the contributions to economic growth by capital labor and technological progress

Services Industries and the Knowledge-based Economy Canada. Industry Canada,2006 Services industries account for almost three quarters of both gross domestic product and employment in Canada a trend that Canada shares with other G 7 countries Furthermore the services sector has been responsible for most of Canada s employment creation and much of its productivity growth over the past decade and the sector s importance to the Canadian economy continues to increase Thirty renowned experts contribute to this volume which is aimed at better understanding the dynamics of Canadian services industries and identifying the types of policies most likely to improve their innovation and productivity performance

Service Industries and Asia Pacific Cities Peter W. Daniels,Kong Chong Ho,Tom Hutton,2005-04-01 During the second half of the twentieth century development in the Asia Pacific region has been dominated by industrialization However at the beginning of the twenty first century services in particular finance information and creative services have become deeply embedded in the processes of urban growth In Asia Pacific the rise of service industries has lead to national modernization programmes and globalization strategies Services are also driving change in the internal form of city regions and are being actively deployed as instruments of metropolitan reconfiguration and land use changes These changes have created problems such as social polarization and the displacement of traditional industries and residential districts Also there are tensions between local and global processes in the development of service industries and between the imperatives of competitive advantage and sustainable development

Service Industries and Asia Pacific Cities brings together a multi disciplinary team of experts to explore and illustrate the theoretical conceptual and practical issues arising from the transformation of Asia Pacific cities by service industries

Producer Services in China Anthony Yeh,Fiona Yang,2013-02-11 In the past three decades China has experienced an unprecedented pace of economic and urban development It s economy is now transforming from one based on manufacturing industries towards the producer services with the importance of these services in the national and regional economy being recognized by economists and policy makers alike With growing demand and policy support producer services are expected to expand rapidly leading to a new wave of economic and urban development in China This groundbreaking volume is one of the first to address questions related to the development of these services in China The contributions explore a wide range of associated topics including the characteristics of the growth of producer services and how this is related to China s economic and urban transition the distribution of these services amongst Chinese cities as well as drawing comparison between producer service development in China and Western counterparts This volume also discusses the dynamics of the development of these services in China and how the political economic embeddedness of China has shaped the development of producer services Finally the consequences of this growth and how the economy and urban space have change in response is explored as well as the challenges Chinese cities face in moving towards a service economy and how this can inform future public policies This volume addresses the pressing need to understand the economic and urban changes in post industrial China to allow appropriate strategies and policies to formulated to facilitate future development in China The text is rich with statistical data and diagrams providing original contributions and a cutting edge overview This timely publication will be of interest to upper level undergraduates postgraduates and researchers interested in China Urban Studies and Economic Development

China's White-Collar Wave Changyun Jiang,Qun Lian Hong,Ling Qiu,2019-11-04 This book explores the move from manufacturing towards service industry jobs in China s economic development during the 12th Five Year Plan period The service industry now makes up the highest proportion of the GDP and employs the largest number of people in China In the next Five Year Plan period it is necessary to actively push forward the strategic transformation by placing emphasis on the service industry to press ahead with system and mechanism reforms and policy innovations and cultivate diverse sustainable and continuous forces for driving its growth Efforts are made to upgrade the service industry to better achieve economic and social development in an innovative coordinated green open and shared way This book will be of interest to scholars researching China s future
