Independence and Economic Security in Old Age focuses on the economic and social implications of aging at the level of the individual and of society as a whole. The product of a three year research program, the book contains chapters by recognized experts in the fields of economics and econometrics, sociology, social work, medicine, epidemiology, gerontology and nursing. The book first looks at some basic demographic issues including the definition of old, the changing age distribution of the population and the demographic outlook for the next several decades. It then moves into the area of family relations, health and economic security. The concept of independence among the elderly is examined and the degree of preparedness for old age by different elderly or soon to be elderly cohorts is considered. The measurable social contributions of the elderly are also discussed in juxtaposition with the benefits they receive. The book continues with an examination of the saving behaviour of the elderly, the appropriateness of the Consumer Price Index as a measure of inflation, the incomes of older women and how the tax transfer system affects the incentives of Canadians to save for retirement. Comprehensive and innovative in its consideration of the issues and implications of aging, this book will be a valuable resource for specialists and non specialists interested in issues of population aging for students of gerontology, economics, sociology, health studies, social work and women's studies and for social planners and policy makers.
