Izenberg, 2015-03-08 Although largely sympathetic to Freud's clinical achievement the existentialists criticized Freudian metapsychology as inappropriate to a truly humanistic psychology Gerald Izenberg evaluates the critique of Freud in the work of two existential philosophers Martin Heidegger and Jean Paul Sartre and two existential psychiatrists Ludwig Binswanger and Medard Boss His book interprets the relationship of psychoanalysis and existentialism and traces the history of a crisis in the European rationalist tradition The author unveils the positivist foundations of Freud's theory of meaning and discusses the reactions it provoked in the work of Binswanger Boss and Sartre Probing beneath the methodological dispute he shows that the argument involved a challenge to the conception of the self that had dominated European thought since the Enlightenment Existentialism reflecting the turmoil of the inter war and post war years furnished a theory of motivation better able to account for Freud's clinical data than his own rationalist metapsychology This theory made problematic the existentialist idea of authenticity and freedom however and so the attempt to provide a substitute ethic and concept of mental health ended in failure although in the process the basic questions were posed that must be answered in any modern social theory Originally published in 1976 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 Reason and Violence Ronald David Laing, D. Philosophies of Human Nature P. Langford, 2012-12-06 General Argument My aim is to survey some of the most influential philosophical writers on human nature from the time that Augustine codified Christian belief to the present During this period philosophical opinions about human nature underwent a transformation from the God centered views of Augustine and the scholastics to the human centered ideas of Nietzsche Freud and Sartre While one aim has simply been to provide a handy survey I do have three polemical purposes One is to oppose the notion that the modernism of more recent writers was produced by methodological innovations According to both Freud and Sartre as well as other key figures like Lacan and Heidegger their views were the product of new methods of investigating human nature namely those of psychoanalysis and the phenomenological reduction Psychoanalysis claimed to use the interpretation of both dreams and the relationship between analyst and patient to penetrate the unconscious Phenomenology has claimed that trained philosophers are able to obtain a privileged view of consciousness by a special act of thought called the phenomenological reduction which enables them to view consciousness without preconceptions On many issues my sympathies are with Nietzsche rather than with Freud or phenomenology This is also the case regarding methodology Nietzsche saw quite clearly that the possibility of popularising the views he himself held came from the decline of Christianity My rejection of exclusive reliance upon the methodologies of psychoanalysis and phenomenology is based on two lines of argument
