Scoring the Hollywood Actor in the 1950s Gregory Camp, 2020-12-30 Scoring the Hollywood Actor in the 1950s theorises the connections between film acting and film music using the films of the 1950s as case studies Closely examining performances of such actors as James Dean Montgomery Clift and Marilyn Monroe and films of directors like Elia Kazan Douglas Sirk and Alfred Hitchcock this volume provides a comprehensive view of how screen performance has been musicalised including examination of the role of music in relation to the creation of cinematic performances and the perception of an actor's performance. The book also explores the idea of music as a temporal vector which mirrors the temporal vector of actors' voices and movements ultimately demonstrating how acting and music go together to create a forward axis of time in the films of the 1950s. This is a valuable resource for scholars and researchers of musicology, film, music and film studies more generally.

Hutu Rebels Anna Hedlund, 2019-10-04. In 1994 almost one million ethnic Tutsis were killed in the genocide in Rwanda. In the aftermath of the genocide some of the top echelon Hutu officers who had organized it fled Rwanda to the eastern Congo DRC and set up a new base for military operation with the goal of retaking power in Kigali Rwanda. More than twenty years later these rebel forces comprise a diverse group of refugees, rebel fighters and civilian dependents who operate from mountain areas in the Congo forests and have a long and complex history of war and violence. While media and human rights reports typically portray this rebel group as one of the most brutal rebel factions operating in the eastern Congo region, Hutu Rebels paints a more complex picture. Having conducted ethnographic fieldwork in a rebel camp located deep in the Congo forest, Anna Hedlund explores the micropolitics and practices of everyday life among a community of Hutu rebel fighters and their families living under the harshest of conditions. She describes the Hutu fighters not only as a military unit with a vision of return to Rwanda but also as a community engaged in the present Congo conflicts. Hedlund focuses on how fighters and their families perceive their own life conditions, how they remember and articulate the events of the genocide and why they continue to fight in what appears to be an endless conflict. Hutu Rebels argues that we need to move beyond compiling catalogs of atrocities and start examining the ordinary life of combatants if we want to understand the ways in which violence is expressed in the context of a most brutal conflict.

Rebels Leerom Medovoi, 2005-11-23. A cultural history of the political legitimization of youth rebellion during the Cold War era.

Typical Men Andrew Spicer, 2001-04-12. Typical Men is the first book-length study of masculinity in British cinema and offers a broad and lively overview from the Second World War to the present day. Spicer argues that masculinity in popular fiction can best be understood as a range of dynamic and competing cultural types which rise and fall in relation to shifting patterns of film production, audience taste and social change. Specific chapters are devoted to each of the major types: debonair gentlemen, civilian professionals, action adventurers, the Everyman, Fools and Rogues, criminals, rebels and damaged men, which trace their changing histories through innovative readings of key films together with a fresh look at the performances of particular stars including James Mason, Kenneth More, Michael Caine and Sean Connery. A final chapter explores the complex and hybrid types that have evolved within a volatile and unstable contemporary British cinema, now part of an array of interrelated media images of masculinity. Typical Men will be of keen interest to those concerned with the cultural history of gender and its detailed and carefully contextualised interpretations of films afford a reappraisal of British cinema history, especially the neglected and despised 1950s. Andrew Spicer's Typical Men is a major intervention in debates about masculinity in the cinema It takes a lot of intellectual risks and locates cinematic stereotypes of masculinity in a cinematic and cultural context It is trenchant and original and redefines the field of gender representation Sue Harper Professor of Film History University of Portsmouth The strength of this elegantly and wittily written book is that in the precision of its detail about individual performances actors and films it never loses sight of its argumentative threads Brian McFarlane Screening the Past
