Rediscovering Illinois Fay-Cooper Cole, Thorne Deuel, 1975 Rediscovering Illinois: Archaeological Explorations in and Around Fulton County, by Fay-Cooper Cole and Thorne Deuel, Reviewed by Warren K. Moorehead Warren King Moorehead, 1937 Rediscovery Illinois Fay-Cooper Cole, Thorne Deuel, 1937 The Crable Site, Fulton County, Illinois Hale Gilliam Smith, 1951-01-01 The Crable site is a late prehistoric site in Fulton County in west central Illinois along the Illinois River In this report Hale Gilliam Smith combines results from the University of Chicago's excavation in 1933 with information from local collectors in order to present a description and analysis of the site Archaeologists uncovered burial mounds fire pits and a cemetery artifacts included ceramics chipped stone tools and shell ornaments W. C. McKern and the Midwestern Taxonomic Method R. Lee Lyman, Michael J. O'Brien, 2003 Explores W C McKern's use of Linnaean taxonomy as the model for development of a pottery classification system By the early 20th century North American archaeologists had found evidence of a plethora of prehistoric cultures displaying disparate geographic and chronological distributions But there were no standards or algorithms for specifying when a culture was distinct or identical to another in a nearby or distant region Will Carleton McKern of the Milwaukee Public Museum addressed this fundamental problem of cultural classification beginning in 1929 He modeled his solution known as the Midwestern Taxonomic Method on the Linnaean biological taxonomy because he wanted the ability to draw historical and cultural relationships among cultures McKern was assisted during development of the method by Carl E Guthe Thorne Deuel James B Griffin and William Ritchie This book studies the 1930s correspondence between McKern and his contemporaries as they hashed out the method's nuances It compares the several different versions of the method and examines the Linnaean biological taxonomy as it was understood and used at the time McKern adapted it to archaeological problems Finally this volume reveals how and why the method failed to provide the analytical solution envisioned by McKern and his colleagues and how it influenced the later development of Americanist archaeology Graphing Culture Change in North American Archaeology R. Lee Lyman, 2021-06-10 Documentation analysis and explanation of culture change have long been goals of archaeology Scientific graphs facilitate the visual thinking that allow archaeologists to determine the relationship between variables and if well designed comprehend the processes implied by the relationship Different graph types suggest different ontologies and theories of change and particular techniques of parsing temporally continuous morphological variation of artefacts into types influence graph form North American archaeologists have grappled with finding a graph that effectively and efficiently displays culture change over time Line graphs bar graphs and numerous one off graph types were used between 1910 and 1950 after which spindle graphs displaying temporal frequency distributions of specimens within each of multiple artefact types emerged as the most readily deciphered diagram The variety of graph types used over the twentieth century indicate archaeologists often mixed elements of both Darwinian variational evolutionary change and Midas touch like transformational change Today there is minimal

discussion of graph theory or graph grammar in introductory archaeology textbooks or advanced texts and elements of the two theories of evolution are still mixed Culture has changed and archaeology provides unique access to the totality of humankind's cultural past It is therefore crucial that graph theory construction and decipherment are revived in archaeological discussion

The Steuben Village and Mounds Dan F. Morse, 1963-01-01 The Steuben Village sits on the bank of the Illinois River in Marshall County Illinois Nearby are nine burial mounds In 1955 and 1956 researchers dug five test pits in the village and excavated several of the mounds In addition to burials the crew found thousands of artifacts including pottery chipped and ground stone tools and items made from copper bone and shell The artifacts and radiocarbon dates indicate two Hopewell occupations the earliest about 2 000 years ago

Americanist Culture History R. Lee Lyman, Michael J. O'Brien, Robert C. Dunnell, 2013-03-07 Americanist Culture History reprints thirty nine classic works of Americanist archaeological literature published between 1907 and 1971 The articles in which the key concepts and analytical techniques of culture history were first defined and discussed are reprinted with original pagination and references to enhance the use of this collection as a research and teaching resource The editors also include an introduction that summarizes the rise and fall of the culture history paradigm making this volume an excellent introduction to the field's primary literature

Mississippian Community Organization Michael J. O'Brien, 2005-12-11 The Powers Phase Project was a multiyear archaeological program undertaken in southeastern Missouri by the University of Michigan in the late 1960s and early 1970s The project focused on the occupation of a large Pleistocene age terrace in the Little Black River Lowland a large expanse of lowlying land just east of the Ozark Highland between roughly A D 1250 and A D 1400 The largest site in the region is Powers Fort a palisaded mound center that received archaeological attention as early as the late nineteenth century Archaeological surveys conducted south of Powers Fort in the 1960s revealed the presence of numerous smaller sites of varying size that contained artifact assemblages similar to those from the larger center Collectively the settlement aggregation became known as the Powers phase Test excavations indicated that at least some of the smaller sites contained burned structures and that the burning had sealed household items on the floors below the collapsed architectural elements Thus there appeared to be an opportunity to examine a late prehistoric settlement system to a degree not possible previously Not only could the spatial relation of communities in the system be ascertained but the fact that structures within the communities had burned appeared to provide a unique opportunity to examine such things as differences in household items between and among structures and where various activities had occurred within a house With these ideas in mind James B Griffin and James E

The Burial Complexes of the Knight and Norton Mounds in Illinois and Michigan James B. Griffin, Richard E. Flanders, Paul F. Titterton, 1970-01-01 In this volume the authors collect data from various sources on the excavations of two groups of prehistoric burial mounds the Knight Mound Group in Calhoun County Illinois and the Norton Mound Group in Kent County Michigan Includes more than 200 b w maps illustrations and photographs
