People Forced to Flee United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, 2022-02-16 People in danger have received protection in communities beyond their own from the earliest times of recorded history The causes war conflict violence persecution natural disasters and climate change are as familiar to readers of the news as to students of the past It is 70 years since nations in the wake of World War II drew up the landmark 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees People Forced to Flee marks this milestone It is the latest in a long line of publications stretching back to 1993 that were previously entitled The State of the World's

Refugees The book traces the historic path that led to the 1951 Convention showing how history was made by taking the centuries old ideals of safety and solutions for refugees to global practice It maps its progress during which international protection has reached a much broader group of people than initially envisaged It examines international responses to forced displacement within borders as well as beyond them and the protection principles that apply to both It reviews where they have been used with consistency and success and where they have not At times the strength and resolve of the international community seems strong yet solutions and meaningful solidarity are often elusive Taking stock today at this important anniversary is all the more crucial as the world faces increasing forced displacement Most is experienced in low and middle income countries and persists for generations People forced to flee face barriers to improving their lives contributing to the communities in which they live and realizing solutions Everywhere an effective response depends on the commitment to international cooperation set down in the 1951 Convention a vision often compromised by efforts to minimize responsibilities There is growing recognition that doing better is a global imperative Humanitarian and development action has the potential to be transformational especially when grounded in the local context People Forced to Flee examines how and where increased development investments in education health and economic inclusion are helping to improve socioeconomic opportunities both for forcibly displaced persons and their hosts In 2018 the international community reached a Global Compact on Refugees for more equitable and sustainable responses It is receiving deeper support People Forced to Flee looks at whether that is enough for what could and should help define the next 70 years

The Right to Know Sandra Coliver, 1995 This book documents the massive deprivation of human rights resulting from governmental censorship manipulation and control of reproductive health and sexuality information The introductory chapter applies a human rights perspective to reproductive health to show that women must have full and impartial information to be able to choose services which further their goals rather than governmental policies Examples of different types of state manipulation are provided and demographic biomedical and reproductive health paradigms of contraceptive delivery programs are described Chapter 2 identifies the binding obligations imposed on governments by the international principle that women have a right to appropriate reproductive health information The third chapter provides a global overview of such topics as health expenditures fertility rates infertility literacy and education infant and child mortality maternal mortality child spacing contraceptive usage unmet need abortion HIV AIDS and sexually transmitted diseases STDs Chapters 4 13 present country reports for Algeria Brazil Chile Ireland Kenya Malawi Pakistan the Philippines Poland and the US The country reports reveal the overwhelming need of women to have access to this information and the innumerable ways in which governments control such access The country reports also describe factors such as religion culture tradition state of development and influence of foreign donors which have an impact on access to information Each country report ends with specific recommendations and the concluding chapter defines seven obligations of national governments imposed by the right to information contained in international law and contains recommendations of ways nongovernmental organizations can use these obligations to lobby governments for improvements
