Making America Work Jonathan Barry Forman, 2006-09 Work Hard work And plenty of it That is what has made the United States into the world's foremost economic superpower But while we Americans value and respect work we are also concerned about economic justice We like to see all workers earn a fair day's pay for a fair day's work And we like having a safety net to catch those who cannot compete successfully in our labor markets America works because of this balance between the desire to reward work and our concerns about economic justice But according to Jon Forman America could work even better In Making America Work Forman explains how current government policies influence work and work behavior and makes the case for changing government tax welfare Social Security pension and labor market policies to encourage work and promote greater economic justice It is a clear provocative declaration of principles and a bold prescription for policies that restore and preserve the balance of work rewards and economic justice

Information Requirements for Transportation Economic Analysis National Research Council (U.S.). Transportation Research Board, 2000 Conference participants sought to identify gaps in the data and analytic tools needed to support economic analysis as related to transportation investment and to develop research proposals designed to fill those gaps The opening day of the conference featured presentations by economists transportation analysts and policy makers on the theory and practice of economic analysis and its usefulness to decision makers The second and third days of the conference revolved around participatory workshops Six separate working groups deliberated over three questions 1 What is the appropriate level of investment in transportation to encourage economic health 2 How should projects be prioritized within a multimodal transportation program 3 How much revenue is likely to flow from user charges tolls and other sources At the conclusion of its deliberations each working group developed a list of research proposals which it then presented to the conference as a whole
