Planning Singapore Stephen Hamnett,Belinda Yuen,2019-05-08 Two hundred years ago Sir Stamford Raffles established the modern settlement of Singapore with the intent of seeing it become a great commercial emporium and fulcrum But by the time independence was achieved in 1965 the city faced daunting problems of housing shortage slums and high unemployment Since then Singapore has become one of the richest countries on earth providing in Sir Peter Hall s words perhaps the most extraordinary case of economic development in the history of the world The story of Singapore s remarkable achievements in the first half century after its independence is now widely known In Planning Singapore The Experimental City Stephen Hamnett and Belinda Yuen have brought together a set of chapters on Singapore s planning achievements aspirations and challenges which are united in their focus on what might happen next in the planning of the island state Chapters range over Singapore s planning system innovation and future economy housing biodiversity water and waste climate change transport and the potential transferability of Singapore's planning knowledge A key question is whether the planning approaches which have served Singapore so well until now will suffice to meet the emerging challenges of a changing global economy demographic shifts new technologies and the existential threat of climate change Singapore as a global city is becoming more unequal and more diverse This has the potential to weaken the social compact which has largely existed since independence and to undermine the social resilience undoubtedly needed to cope with the shocks and disruptions of the twenty first century The book concludes however that Singapore is better placed than most to respond to the challenges which it will certainly face thanks to its outstanding systems of planning and implementation a proven capacity to experiment and a highly developed ability to adapt quickly purposefully and pragmatically to changing circumstances

Beyerlein, 2013-06-29 This book places current and future work team practices in historical context Researchers from 10 countries have contributed chapters that represent developments specific to their regions and that illustrate the way ideas spread around the world Some principles of effective teaming were independently discovered in different countries and some principles emerged from the work of researchers like Trist Emery and Lewin and spread around the world But all of the practices were driven by the dynamic tension between the psychology of the employee and business necessities Theories and cases describe autonomous work groups self managed work teams cell teams and other collaborative work structures Contributions to the design of such structures came from psychology management sociology industrial engineering and manufacturing Because of the challenges inherent in reorganising work around teams instead of individuals organizations are at different stages in evolving into 21st century work systems

The Human Rights Covenants at 50 Daniel Moeckli, Helen Keller, Corina Heri, 2018-06-07 Half a century ago on 16 December 1966 the UN General Assembly adopted the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights ICCPR and the International Covenant on Economic Social and Cultural Rights ICESCR While the adoption of the two UN human rights covenants was celebrated all over the world their 50th anniversary has received very little attention from the international community The present book marks this anniversary by taking stock of the first half century of the existence of what are probably the world's two most important human rights treaties It does so by reflecting on what the covenants have achieved or failed to achieve in the years that have passed by determining and comparing their current influence in the various regions of the world and by assessing their potential roles in the future The book contains papers that were presented during a symposium held in Zurich in 2016 which brought together experts and stakeholders from a range of disciplines and world regions Some fundamental issues that are addressed by the contributors are as old as the two covenants themselves They concern for example the division of human rights into first and second generation rights and the question of whether there should be one central monitoring body possibly a world court or more than just one However the contributors go beyond such questions that have been explored before they develop new answers to old questions and point to new challenges

Religion and Commodification Vineeta Sinha, 2011-04-13 Sustaining a Hindu universe at an everyday life level requires an extraordinary range of religious specialists and ritual paraphernalia At the level of practice devotional Hinduism is an embodied religion and grounded in a materiality that makes the presence of specific physical objects which when used in worship also carry immense ritual and symbolic load an indispensable part of its religious practices Traditionally both services and objects required for worship were provided and produced by occupational communities The almost sacred connection between caste groups and occupation profession has been clearly severed in many diasporic locations but importantly in India itself As such skills and expertise required for producing an array of physical objects in order to support Hindu worship have been taken over by clusters of individuals with no traditional historical connection with caste related knowledge Both the transference and disconnect just noted have been crucial for the ultimate commodification of objects used in the act of Hindu worship and the emergence of an analogous commercial industry as a result These developments condense highly complex processes that need careful conceptual explication a task that is exciting and carries enormous potential for theoretical reflections in key fields of study Using the lens of visibility and materiality Sinha offers insights into the everyday material religious lives of Hindus as they strive to sustain theistic devotional Hinduism in diasporic locations particularly Singapore Malaysia and Tamilnadu where religious objects have become commodified
