Looking At Criminal Law:

The Criminal Law's Person Claes Lernerstedt, Matt Matravers, 2022-02-10 The state's use of the threat and imposition of punishments to regulate conduct is thought or at least said by many to be legitimised by the idea that the criminal law's burdens only fall on those who are blameworthy for their conduct. However, the formal concept of blameworthiness needs to be made substantive. This puts various ideas regarding the criminal law's person at the heart of debates about blame, guilt and responsibility. How is the criminal law's person constructed by whom and with what disciplinary norms? How is it threatened by new knowledge and how do those threats play out amongst the various stakeholders who claim the criminal law's person as theirs? To address these and cognate questions, this volume brings together an international group of academics to engage with the criminal law's person from a range of disciplinary perspectives.

The Boundaries of the Criminal Law R. A. Duff, Lindsay Farmer, S. E. Marshall, Massimo Renzo, Victor Tadros, 2010-11-11 Criminalization is a new series arising from an interdisciplinary investigation into criminalization focussing on the principles and goals that should guide decisions about what kinds of conduct are to be criminalized and the forms that criminalization should take. Developing a normative theory of criminalization, the six volumes will tackle the key questions at the heart of the issue. By reference to what principles and goals should legislations decide what to criminalize? How should criminal wrongs be classified and differentiated? And how should law enforcement officials apply the law's specification of offences? Boundaries of the Criminal Law is the first book in this series examining the scope and boundaries of the criminal law. Investigations into the scope of the criminal law have often focused on the harm principle, the principle that conduct can be justifiably criminalized only if it is harmful, or other master principles that might determine the proper scope of the criminal law. This collection of original essays by some of the leading scholars in criminal law and philosophy from the UK and the US makes significant advances in the development of a broader range of ideas that might inform criminalization decisions. A range of issues are discussed, including the significance for criminalization of ideas of moral wrongdoing and of using a person as a means, the distinction between criminal law and other forms of legal regulation, the role of new technology in our understanding of the evolving scope of the criminal law and the role of criminal justice officials in decision making about criminalization. The authors draw on legal and philosophical sources but also on history, sociology and social psychology in their investigations for a truly interdisciplinary approach. This is a groundbreaking set of essays which will help to reorient legal and philosophical discussion about the proper scope of the criminal law.

Making the Modern Criminal Law Lindsay Farmer, 2016 The Criminalization series arose from an interdisciplinary investigation into criminalization focusing on the principles that might guide decisions about what kinds of conduct should be criminalized and the forms that criminalization should take. Developing a normative theory of criminalization the series tackles the key questions at the heart of the issue what principles and goals should guide legislators in deciding what to criminalize How should criminal wrongs be classified and differentiated How should law enforcement officials apply the law s specifications of offences The fifth book in the series offers an historical and conceptual account of the criminal law as it has developed in England and spread to common law jurisdictions around the world It traces how and why criminal law has come to be accorded with a central role in securing civil order in modernity and justifies who and what should be treated as criminal under the law Farmer argues that the emergence of the modern state in which criminal law is recognized as an instrument of government is a result of the distinct body of rules which have emerged from the modern criminal law Structured in two parts the first traces the development of the modern criminal law including jurisdiction codification and responsibility The second part engages in a detailed analysis of the development of specific categories of criminal law focusing on patterns of criminalization in relation to property offences offences against the person sexual offences and civility
