Marriage Among A Matrilineal Elite:

Marriage Among a Matrilineal Elite Christine Oppong, 2009-01-08 A study of conjugal and kin relationships in a group of urban educated West Africans Akan Senior Civil Servants in Accra As well as representing a contribution to the growing body of data on marriage and family life in West Africa the book is an exercise in methodology in which the aim has been to evolve ways of documenting and comparing two major aspects of conjugal family relationships the division of labour resources and power between spouses and the extent to which the conjugal family is a functionally discrete unit in a number of domestic activity areas This documentation and analysis leads to the examination of marital continuity and change among urban migrants from a region characterised by matrilineal descent and inheritance African Gender Studies Oyeronke Oyewumi, 2016-09-27 This is the first comprehensive reader that brings African experiences to bear on the ongoing global discussions of women gender and society Bringing together the essential writing on this topic from the last 25 years these essays discuss gender in Africa from a multi disciplinary perspective Anthropology and Africa Sally Falk Moore, 1994 African studies in anthropology throw light on the way Anglo Europeans and Americans have conceived of the rest of the world and the way academic disciplines have changed in this century Changing Social Structure in Ghana Jack Goody, 2018-08-16 Originally published in 1975 this book presents the results of research into social change in Ghana The book looks in detail at the problems of particular sub groups and sectors in one single nation and they show that the field worker with a wide comparative background in the range of pre industrial societies has a positive role to play in contemporary social science Informal Institutions and Citizenship in Rural Africa Lauren M. MacLean, 2010-05-24 This book challenges previous assumptions about institutions social capital and the nature of the African state by investigating the history of political and economic change in villages on either side of the Ghana Cote d'Ivoire border Prior to European colonial rule these Akan villages had very similar political and cultural institutions By the late 1990s however Lauren M MacLean found puzzling differences in the informal institutions of reciprocity and indigenous notions of citizenship MacLean argues that divergent histories of state formation not only shape how villagers help each other but also influence how local groups and communities define citizenship and then choose to engage with the state on an everyday basis She examines the historical construction of the state role in mediating risk at the local level across three policy areas political administration social service delivery and agriculture Women And Work In Africa Edna G. Bay, 2019-04-18 This collection of articles grows out of a symposium on the subject of women and work in Africa held on the Urbana Champaign campus of the University of Illinois in the spring of 1979 The organizing committee for that program sought first to update the field of economic studies of women in Africa and second to provide a forum for the exchange and stimulation of ideas among scholars and professionals concerned for women in Africa The publication here of the majority of the symposium papers represents a logical final step in the fulfillment of the objectives of the symposium program committee Family Violence From a

Families in the U.S. Karen V. Hansen, Anita Iltis Garey, 1998 Attempts to do justice to the complexity of contemporary families and to situate them in their economic political and cultural contexts This book explores the ways in which family life is gendered and reflects on the work of maintaining family and kin relationships especially as social and family power structures change over time

Women in Developing Countries Kathleen A Staudt, Jane S Jaquette, 2013-05-13 Here is an insightful volume on the integration of women in the modernization process of developing countries with research studies on women and development in Guatemala Tanzania Indonesia and several other countries Drawing from theory and practice authorities examine how development in any kind of economy marginalizes women illustrate the existence of a feminist awareness among impoverished rural women demonstrate the importance of understanding the policy and program implementation institutions within which any transition toward more women sensitive change is to occur and suggest the kind of research that would be useful and credible to policymakers Each of the controversial chapters reflects a new phase in women and development research and each is a reminder that the fundamental issue women's subordination remains key to theory and practice in development

Africans John Iliffe, 2017-07-13 In a vast and all embracing study of Africa from the origins of mankind to the present day John Iliffe refocuses its history on the peopling of an environmentally hostile continent Africans have been pioneers struggling against disease and nature but during the last century their inherited culture has interacted with medical progress to produce the most rapid population growth the world has ever seen This new edition incorporates genetic and linguistic findings throwing light on early African history and summarises research that has transformed the study of the Atlantic slave trade It also examines the consequences of a rapidly growing youthful population the hopeful but uncertain democratisation and economic recovery of the early twenty first century the containment of the AIDS epidemic and the turmoil within Islam that has produced the Arab Spring Africans The History of a Continent is thus a single story binding modern men and women to their earliest human ancestors

Women's Work and Chicano Families Patricia Zavella, 2018-03-15 At the time Women's Work and Chicano Families Cannery Workers of the Santa Clara Valley was published little research had been done on the relationship between the wage labor and household labor of Mexican American women Drawing on revisionist social theories relating to Chicano family structure as well as on feminist theory Patricia Zavella paints a compelling picture of the Chicano women who worked in northern California's fruit and vegetable canneries Her book combines social history shop floor ethnography and in depth interviews to explore the links between Chicano family life and gender inequality in the labor market

The Experiences of Ghanaian Live-in Caregivers in the United States Martha Donkor, 2017-11-15 Using the convergence of the impact of globalization and political turmoil in Ghana on Ghanaian women as a backdrop this book examines the migration of the women to the US and their decisions to care for upper middle class white seniors who elected to stay in their homes to be cared for by private caregivers The book explores the attraction of domestic care work the women's perceptions of their job their relationships with their clients and the dynamics of their relationships with their immediate families and families left behind in Ghana It also analyzes the women's interactions with the immigrant community from their remote work sites The book examines widely held beliefs about domestic work as undervalued under remunerated and relegated to marginalized immigrant women of color While admitting that these problems exist the women whose stories are told in the book did not believe that their brand of care work which they called private practice was undervalued or underpaid They also did not think that racism played a role in the concentration of immigrant women of color in domestic care work as widely believed although again the women admitted that there was racism in American society By doing so the women symbolically placed themselves beyond the institutional barriers that constrain the lives of women of color in American society And while it addresses common themes like exploitation abuse restriction of movement etc that other studies of immigrant live in caregiving address this book stands out in two major ways First is its truly transnational character It links the women's background in Ghana to their immigration history and how these two influenced their choice as well as perceptions of care work and then loops their experience of care work back to expectations in Ghana Second the book validates the women's voices as a product of their cultural background thus making the case that the women's choices and experiences were informed by conditions in the US and the cultural baggage the women brought with them The book argues that private care work satisfied women's financial expectations and with that leverage in their families
