The Real Thing and Other Tales (Annotated) Henry James, 2020-04 Differentiated book It has a historical context with research of the time Henry James New York April 15 1843 London February 28 1916 was an American writer and literary critic nationalized British at the end of his life who is known for his novels and stories based on the dot technique of view which allows the psychological analysis of the characters from within. He was the son of Henry James Sr and younger brother of the philosopher and psychologist William James. Henry spent a lot of time in Europe. As a writer, James is considered one of the great figures of transatlantic literature. His works are often based on the juxtaposition of characters from the Old artistic, corrupting and seductive world and the New World where people are often sincere and open, although their nuances and variations are multiple. In his works, he prefers internal and psychological drama, and alienation is a common theme of his. His early works are considered realistic, but in fact, during his long literary career, he maintained a keen interest in a variety of artistic movements. His works have been adapted into film many times by directors such as William Wyler. This story is often read as a parable, playing with the reality illusion dichotomy that fascinated James especially in the later stages of his career. For the narrator, who narrates the story, the genuine article proves all too useless for his commercial purposes. The story portrays the unfortunate victims of a society in which reality and representation are closely intertwined in ways that make art a difficult project to untangle. The two Plot summary: The narrator, an unnamed illustrator and aspiring painter, hires a faded genteel couple, the Monarchs, as models after they have lost most of their money and must find some line of work. They are the real thing in that they perfectly represent the aristocratic type, but they prove inflexible for the painter's work. He comes to rely much more on two lower class subjects who are nevertheless more capable: Oronte, an Italian, and Miss Churm, a lower class Englishwoman. The illustrator finally has to get rid of the Monarchs, especially after his friend and fellow artist Jack Hawley criticizes the work in which the Monarchs are represented. Hawley says that the pair has hurt the narrator's art, perhaps permanently. In the final line of the story, the narrator says he is content to have paid the price for the memory. Henry James (15 April 1843 – 28 February 1916) was an American-British author regarded as a key transitional figure between literary realism and literary modernism and is considered by many to be among the greatest novelists in the English language. He was the son of Henry James Sr and the brother of renowned philosopher and psychologist William James and diarist Alice James. He is best known for a number of novels dealing with the social and marital interplay between emigre Americans, English people, and continental Europeans. Examples of such novels include The Portrait of a Lady, The Ambassadors, and The Wings of the Dove. His later works were increasingly experimental. In describing the internal states of mind and social dynamics of his characters James often made use of a style in which ambiguous or contradictory motives and impressions were overlaid or juxtaposed in the discussion of a character's psyche For their unique ambiguity as well as for other aspects of their composition his late works have been compared to impressionist painting James also published articles and books of criticism travel biography autobiography and plays Born in the United States James largely relocated to Europe as a young man and eventually settled in England becoming a British subject in 1915 one year before his death James was nominated for the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1911 1912 and 1916
