

The image is a composite. The top half shows a city skyline, likely New York City, with several prominent skyscrapers like the Empire State Building and One World Trade Center. The sky is a mix of orange, yellow, and grey, suggesting a sunset or sunrise. The bottom half shows a large group of people, mostly men, standing in a field of tall, thin, dark poles. They are arranged in rows, and the scene is captured in a long-exposure style, making the poles appear as a dense forest. A small red sign with white text is visible in the middle of the pole field.

Gould,2014-03-27 The question of God's relationship to abstract objects touches on a number of perennial concerns related to the nature of God God is typically thought to be an independent and self sufficient being Further God is typically thought to be supremely sovereign such that all reality distinct from God is dependent on God's creative and sustaining activity However the view that there are abstract objects seems to be a repudiation of this traditional understanding of God Abstract objects are typically thought to exist necessarily and it is natural to think that if something exists necessarily it does so because it is its nature to exist Thus abstract objects exist independently of God Philosophers have called this the problem of God and abstract objects In this book six contemporary solutions to the problem are set out and defended against objections It will be valuable for all students or scholars who are interested in the concept and nature of God God Christoph
