The Case for Reappraisal of U.S. Overseas Information Policies and Programs Edward L. Bernays,Burnet Hershey,1970 Based on papers delivered at a one day conference under the auspices of the Emergency Committee for Reappraisal of U S Overseas Information Policies and Programs and the Overseas Press Club Foundation Across Cultural Borders Eckhardt Fuchs,Benedikt Stuchtey,2002 This innovative work offers the first comprehensive transcultural history of historiography The contributors transcend a Eurocentric approach not only in terms of the individual historiographies they assess but also in the methodologies they use for comparative analysis Moving beyond the traditional national focus of historiography the book offers a genuinely comparative consideration of the commonalities and differences in writing history Distinguishing among distinct cultural identities the contributors consider the ways and means of intellectual transfers and assess the strength of local historiographical traditions as they are challenged from outside The essays explore the question of the utility and the limits of conceptions of modernism that apply Western theories of development to non Western cultures Warning against the dominant tendency in recent historiographies of non Western societies to define these predominantly in relation to Western thought the authors show the extent to which indigenous traditions have been overlooked The key question is how the triad of industrialization modernization and the historicization process which was decisive in the development of modern academic historiography also is valid beyond Europe Illustrating just how deeply suffused history writing is with European models the book offers a broad theoretical platform for exploring the value and necessity of a world historiography beyond Eurocentrism Selling the Congo Matthew G. Stanard,2012-01-01 Belgium was a small neutral country without a colonial tradition when King Leopold II ceded the Congo his personal property to the state in 1908 For the next half century Belgium not only ruled an African empire but also through widespread enduring and eagerly embraced propaganda produced an imperialist minded citizenry Selling the Congo is a study of European pro empire propaganda in Belgium with particular emphasis on the period 1908 60 Matthew G Stanard questions the nature of Belgian imperialism in the Congo and considers the Belgian case in light of literature on the French British and other European overseas empires Comparing Belgium to other imperial powers the book finds that pro empire propaganda was a basic part of European overseas expansion and administration during the modern period Arguing against the long held belief that Belgians were merely reluctant imperialists Stanard demonstrates that in fact many Belgians readily embraced imperialistic propaganda Selling the Congo contributes to our understanding of the effectiveness of twentieth century propaganda by revealing its successes and failures in the Belgian case Many readers familiar with more popular histories of Belgian imperialism will find in this book a deeper examination of European involvement in central Africa during the colonial era Losing Our Heads Regina Janes,2005-08-01 What is the fascination that decollation holds for us as individuals and as a culture Why does the idea make us laugh and the act make us close our eyes Losing Our Heads explores in both artistic and cultural contexts the role of the chopped off head It asks why the practice of decapitation was once so widespread why it has diminished but not as scenes from contemporary Iraq show completely disappeared and why we find it so peculiarly repulsive that we use it as a principal marker to separate ourselves from a more barbaric or primitive past Although the topic is grim Regina Janes s treatment and conclusions are neither grisly nor gruesome but continuously instructive about the ironies of humanity s cultural nature Bringing to bear an array of evidence the book argues that the human ability to create meaning from the body motivates the practice of decapitation its diminution the impossibility of its extirpation and its continuing fascination Ranging from antiquity to the late nineteenth century passion for Salom and John the Baptist and from the enlightenment to postcolonial Africa s challenge to the severed head as sign of barbarism Losing Our Heads opens new areas of investigation enabling readers to understand the shock of decapitation and to see the value in moving past shock to analysis Written with penetrating wit and featuring striking illustrations it is sure to captivate anyone interested in his or her head The

Catherine Manning,2017-07-05 The history of the French in India has received far less scholarly attention than that of other European nations English historiography in particular has often treated it as no more than a preliminary to the extension of British power In addition work hitherto has tended to focus on the trade with Europe not the Asian trade the country trade carried on within Asia the full importance of this trade for the Dutch and British is now being recognised This book represents the first sustained study of French activities in Asian trade and fills this gap in the historiography Catherine Manning is concerned to relate the French traders to their social regional and financial roots and to trace their connections with other commercial groups in India both European and Asian The French evidence that she assembles including much archival material also makes a significant contribution to the debate about economic decline and renewal in 18th century India Her analysis stresses the importance of the Indian context and shows that economic and political developments in South India were crucial to the French move from trade to war in the 1740s Finally the book examines why the French failed in an enterprise which was to succeed so signally for the British only a few decades later Historiography of Europeans in Africa and Asia, 1450-1800 Anthony Disney, 2019-07-25 The first part of this volume deals with the changes and continuities in historical approaches over the last fifty years with three further sections focusing on initial contacts formal presences and informal presences Emphasis has been placed on the major European players in Asia and Africa before 1800 the Portuguese Dutch and English without neglecting the role played by the French Spanish Scandinavians and others Portuguese Merchants and Missionaries in Feudal Japan, 1543-1640 C.R. Boxer, 2024-12-11 The relationship between God and Mammon forms a recurring theme in this volume the third collection of Professor Boxer's articles to be published by Variorum The previous two traced the Portuguese expansion through the Indian Ocean to South East Asia and in this one he moves on further to the Far East to deal with the China Japan trade based on the cities of Macao and Nagasaki Yet there as elsewhere commerce was not disassociated from religion not only were the missionaries so enthusiastically despatched to convert the Japanese dependant on the merchants for shipping but the Jesuits the principal of those missionaries themselves played an active part in the trade and the fortunes of both merchants and missionaries proved inextricably linked In these articles the author describes the successes and tragedies of the Portuguese during the period when they dominated European activity in the Far East and assesses their influence in what has come to be called the Christian century in Japan War, Trade and Piracy in the China Seas (1622-1683) Weichung Cheng, 2013-05-13 Approaching its demise the Ming imperial administration enlisted members of the Cheng family as mercenaries to help in the defense of the coastal waters of Fukien Under the leadership of Cheng Chih lung also known as Nicolas Iquan and with the help of the local gentry these mercenaries became the backbone of the empire's maritime defense and the protectors of Chinese commercial interests in the East and South China Seas The fall of the Ming allowed Cheng Ch eng kung alias Coxinga and his sons to create a short lived but independent seaborne regime in China's southeastern coastal provinces that competed fiercely if only briefly with Spanish Portuguese Dutch and English merchants during the early stages of globalization Distant Lands and Diverse Cultures Glenn J. Ames, Ronald S. Love, 2003-07-30 Utilizing contemporary accounts of India China Siam and the Levant this study provides rich detail about these exotic lands and explores the priorities that shaped and motivated these bold envoys and chroniclers Ames and Love offer a fascinating look at the symbiotic nature of cross cultural interaction between France and the major trading regions of the Indian Ocean basin during the 17th century During this period of intense French interest in the rich trade and cultures of the region Louis XIV and his minister Jean Baptiste Colbert in particular were concerned with encouraging French travelers both clerical and lay to explore and document these lands Among the accounts included here are those of Francois Bernier Jean Baptiste Tavernier and Francois Pyrard Because these accounts reflect as much about the structures and priorities of France as they do about the cultures they describe Ames and Love hope their analysis bridges the gap between studies on early modern France and those on the major Asiatic countries of the same period Their findings challenge the current thinking in the study of early modern France by demonstrating that overseas expansion to Asia was of considerable importance and interest to all segments of French society Specialists in traditional internal French history will find much in this study of European expansion to complement and supplement their research profits Despite the huge imports of British copper by the English East India Company during the eighteenth century the Dutch Company successfully continued to sell Japanese copper in South Asia at higher prices Compared to the capital intensive development of British mines in the age of the Industrial Revolution the copper production in Tokugawa Japan was characterized by a labour intensive revolution which also made a big impact on the local economy

The Dynamics of Global Dominance David B. Abernethy, 2000-01-01 For centuries Europeans ruled vast portions of the world as inhabitants of west European countries sailed to distant continents and took possession of territories whose societies and economies they set out to change How and why did these farflung empires form persist and finally fall David Abernethy addresses these questions in this magisterial survey of the rise and decline of European overseas empires Abernethy identifies broad patterns across time and space interweaving them with fascinating details of cross cultural encounters He argues that relatively autonomous profit making religious and governmental institutions enabled west European countries to launch triple assaults on other societies Indigenous people also played a role in their eventual subjugation by inviting Europeans to intervene in their power struggles Abernethy finds that imperial decline was often the unanticipated result of wars among major powers Postwar crises over colonies unmet expectations empowered movements that eventually took territories as diverse as the thirteen British North American colonies Spain s South American possessions India the Dutch East Indies Vietnam and the Gold Coast to independence In advancing a theory of imperialism that includes European and non European actors and in analyzing economic social and cultural as well as political dimensions of empire Abernethy helps account for Europe s long occupation of global center stage He also sheds light on key features of today s postcolonial world and the legacies of empire concluding with an insightful approach to the moral evaluation of colonialism
