Abraham are a true test of her faith but through it all she finds her own relationship with God and does her best to serve His cause in the lives of those she loves Rachel and Leah Tracing their lives from childhood to maturity Card shows how the women of Genesis change each other and are changed again by the holy books that Jacob brings with him There is Leah the oldest daughter of Laban whose tender eyes prevent her from fully participating in the daily work of her nomadic family and Rachel the spoiled younger daughter the petted and privileged beauty of the family or so it seems to Leah There is also Bilhah an orphan who is not quite a slave but not really a family member and Zilpah who knows only how to use her beauty to manipulate men as she strives to secure for herself something better than the life of drudgery and servitude into which she has been born Ambition jealousy fear and love motivate them as they vie for the attention of Jacob heir to the spiritual birthright of Abraham and Isaac At the Publisher's request this title is being sold without Digital Rights Management Software DRM applied

The Genesis of Fiction Terry R. Wright,2016-03-09 This book considers a range of twentieth century novelists who practise a creative mode of reading the Bible exploring aspects of the Book of Genesis which more conventional biblical criticism sometimes ignores Each chapter considers some of the interpretive challenges of the relevant story in Genesis especially those noted by rabbinic midrash which serves as a model for such creative rewriting of the biblical text All the novelists considered from Mark Twain John Steinbeck and Thomas Mann to Jeanette Winterson Anita Diamant and Jenny Diski are shown to have been aware of the midrashic tradition and in some cases to have incorporated significant elements from it into their own writing The questions these modern and postmodern writers ask of the Bible however go beyond those permitted by the rabbis and by other believing interpretive communities Each chapter therefore attempts to chart intertextually where the writers are coming from what principles govern their mode of reading and rewriting Genesis and what conclusions can be drawn about the ways in which it remains possible to relate to the Bible
