BOOK JACKET Debt Wish Alberta Sbragia, 1996-05-15 Albert Sbragia considers American urban government as an investor whether for building infrastructure or supporting economic development Over time such investment has become disconnected from the normal political and administrative processes of local policymaking through the use of special public spending authorities like water and sewer commissions and port turnpike and public power authorities Sbragia explores how this entrepreneurial activity developed and how federal and state policies facilitated or limited it She also analyzes the implications of cities creating innovative special purpose quasi governments to circumvent and dilute state control over city finances diluting their own authority in the process

The Urban Origins of Suburban Autonomy Richardson Dilworth, 2005-02-28 Using the urbanized area that spreads across northern New Jersey and around New York City as a case study this book presents a convincing explanation of metropolitan fragmentation the process by which suburban communities remain as is or break off and form separate political entities The process has important and deleterious consequences for a range of urban issues including the weakening of public finance and school integration The explanation centers on the independent effect of urban infrastructure specifically sewers roads waterworks gas and electricity networks The book argues that the development of such infrastructure in the late nineteenth century not only permitted cities to expand by annexing adjacent municipalities but also further enhanced the ability of these suburban entities to remain or break away and form independent municipalities. The process was crucial in creating a proliferation of municipalities within metropolitan regions. The book thus shows that the roots of the urban crisis can be found in the interplay between technology, politics and public works in the American city.

Legal, Institutional, and Economic Indicators of Forest Conservation and Sustainable Management, 2005 This review looks at the Nation's legal, institutional and economic capacity to promote forest conservation and sustainable resource management. It focuses on 20 indicators of Criterion Seven of the so-called Montreal Process and involves an extensive search and synthesis of information from a variety of sources. It identifies ways to fill information gaps and improve the usefulness of several indicators. It concludes that there is substantial information about the application of such capacities although that application is widely dispersed among agencies and private interests which in turn has led to differing interpretations of the indicators. Individual chapters identify a need to further develop the conceptual foundation on which many of the indicators are predicated. While many uncertainties in the type and accuracy of information are brought to light, the review clearly indicates that legal, institutional and economic capacities to promote sustainability are large and widely available in both the public and private sectors. State Employment Policy in Hard Times Council of State

Planning Agencies,1983 Two hundred years ago Samuel Johnson observed that a society's level of civilization could be gauged by the manner in which it treated its poor By that measure the United States today is steadily losing ground Whereas the number of officially defined poor dwindled steadily from the enactment of the Great Society programs in the mid 1960s reaching a low of 24.5 million people in 1978 it has since risen to more than 32 million people Although the economy continues to generate large numbers of new jobs the basic unemployment rate continues to rise and current projections show little likelihood of unemployment rates consistently below 10 percent until some time after 1984 if then In the years to come the creation of an equitable and workable employment policy will be a major agenda item for politicians and policy makers at the state level as well as for national leaders

State Taxation Policy Michael Barker,1983 This volume discusses the problems of state governments in coping with contemporary issues of redesigning taxation policies to encourage economic growth

Financing State and Local Economic Development Michael Barker,1983 The contributors discuss alternative methods of financing state and local economic development including the role of venture capital in urban development the role of banking institutions in encouraging the growth of small business and the place of pension funds in economic growth

Post-Soviet Social Stephen J. Collier,2011-08-08 The Soviet Union created a unique form of urban modernity developing institutions of social provisioning for hundreds of millions of people in small and medium sized industrial cities spread across a vast territory After the collapse of socialism these institutions were profoundly shaken casualties in the eyes of many observers of market oriented reforms associated with neoliberalism and the Washington Consensus In Post Soviet Social Stephen Collier examines reform in Russia beyond the Washington Consensus He turns attention from the noisy battles over stabilization and privatization during the 1990s to subsequent reforms that grapple with the mundane details of pipes wires bureaucratic routines and budgetary formulas that made up the Soviet social state Drawing on Michel Foucault's lectures from the late 1970s Post Soviet Social uses the Russian case to examine neoliberalism as a central form of political rationality in contemporary societies The book's basic finding that neoliberal reforms provide a justification for redistribution and social welfare and may work to preserve the norms and forms of social modernity lays the groundwork for a critical revision of conventional understandings of these topics
