Rethinking School Choice:

Rethinking School Choice Jeffrey R. Henig, 1995-07-24 Advocates of school vouchers and other choice proposals couch their arguments in the fashionable language of economic theory Choice initiatives at all levels of government have succeeded it is claimed because they shift responsibility for education reform from government to market forces This timely book disputes the appropriateness of the market metaphor as a guide to education policy

Dickman, 2008-10-01 This timely book refocuses the debate about school choice programs with a nonpartisan assessment of the nation's largest and longest running private school voucher program the high profile Milwaukee experiment and finds that the system undercuts the promise of school choice The authors argue that the Milwaukee experiment has not resulted in the one element necessary for school choice to be effective an accountability system in which good schools thrive and poor schools close They show that most ingredients of a robust market are missing Well informed consumers parents are not the norm State fiscal incentives are counterproductive and competition among public and choice schools is difficult to discern They conclude that school choice could succeed if certain conditions were met and they offer guidelines to strengthen accountability and repair the voucher system Policy Entrepreneurs and School Choice Michael Mintrom, 2000-04-26

Rapid and controversial the spread of school choice initiatives across the United States has radically changed political debate about public education In this book Michael Mintrom explores the complex world of open enrollment policies charter schools and voucher plans to reveal how and why school choice has become a major issue and he draws important conclusions about how innovative individuals can spur significant change in the policy arena Policy entrepreneurs individuals who take up a cause and make it part of the political agenda have largely remained background figures without clear definition in the policymaking literature This book is the first comprehensive and systematic treatment of the concept of policy entrepreneurship providing an important foundation for explaining how policy proposals are initiated considered and adopted Mintrom uses the emergence of school choice in state politics to examine how policy change originates He shows how policy entrepreneurs have been instrumental in placing school choice onto state legislative agendas despite the lack of compelling evidence about its merits and how they use social networks reframe policy issues and attempt to shift the sites of policy debate Blending innovative theory with both qualitative and quantitative investigation Mintrom explains how energetic individuals made school choice a real choice In doing so he changes our broader understanding of how policy is formed

Debray, 2011 In this comprehensive volume a roster of leading scholars in educational policy and related fields offer eighteen essays seeking to illuminate new ways for American public education to counter persistent racial and socioeconomic inequality in our society Drawing on extensive research the contributors reinforce the key benefits of racially integrated schools examine remaining options to pursue multiracial integration and discuss case examples that suggest how to build support for those efforts Choosing Schools Mark Schneider, Paul Teske, Melissa Marschall, 2002-04-07 School choice seeks to create a competitive arena in which public schools will attain academic excellence encourage individual student performance and achieve social balance In debating the feasibility of this market approach to improving school systems analysts have focused primarily on schools as suppliers of education but an important question remains Will parents be able to function as smart consumers on behalf of their children Here a highly respected team of social scientists provides extensive empirical evidence on how parents currently do make these choices Drawn from four different types of school districts in New York City and suburban New Jersey their findings not only stress the importance of parental decision making and involvement to school performance but also clarify the issues of school choice in ways that bring much needed balance to the ongoing debate The authors analyze what parents value in education how much they know about schools how well they can match what they say they want in schools with what their children get how satisfied they are with their children's schools and how their involvement in the schools is affected by the opportunity to choose They discover most notably that low income parents value education as much as if not more than high income parents but do not have access to the same quality of school information This problem comes under sensitive thorough scrutiny as do a host of other important topics from school performance to segregation to children at risk of being left behind New Schools for a New Century Diane Ravitch, Joseph P. Viteritti, 1997-01-01 As we cross the threshold of a new century which approaches are likely to improve public education In this book distinguished scholars discuss recent innovations charter schools contracting arrangements and choice designed to liberate educators from burdensome bureaucratic controls and improve the level of opportunity for all children Focusing on the problems in cities where far too many children have been denied access to quality institutions the authors examine the lessons to be learned from Catholic schools site based management private entrepreneurs and specific developments in three cities New York Milwaukee and Chicago The authors though realistic about the political and institutional obstacles that stand in the way of meaningful change foresee the demise of the one size fits all approach to schooling They envision a system of schools that is dynamic diverse performance based and accountable one that is supportive of professionals responsive to creativity intolerant of failure and committed to high educational standards for all children Contributors Louann Bierlein Anthony Bryk John Chubb Chester Finn Paul Hill Valerie

Lee Paul Peterson Diane Ravitch Joseph P Viteritti Priscilla Wohlstetter Fixing Urban Schools Paul T. Hill, Mary Beth Celio, 2010-12-01 Every year in one out of three big cities the school superintendent leaves his or her job sending local community leaders back to square one Cleveland Baltimore and Washington D C are struggling to recreate their failed school systems and many more cities are likely to follow City leaders need more than new superintendents They need stable reform strategies strong enough to move an entrenched system Unfortunately it is not clear where they can turn for help Education experts are deeply divided about whether teacher retraining or new standards are enough to reform a struggling city system or whether more fundamental changes such as family choice and family run schools are needed Based on new research this book identifies the essential elements of reform strategies that can transform school performance in big cities beset by poverty social instability racial isolation and labor unrest It also suggests ways that local leaders can assemble the necessary funding and political support to make such strategies work
