The General Aviation Industry in America Donald M. Pattillo, 2020-03-09 The industry known as general aviation encompassing all flying outside of the military and commercial airlines dates from the early days of powered flight As technology advanced making possible smaller aircraft that could be owned and operated by civilians manufacturers emerged to serve a growing market Increasingly this meant business flying as companies used aircraft in a variety of roles The industry struggled during the Great Depression but development continued small aircraft manufacturers became vital to the massive military production effort during World War II After the war rapid technological advancement and a robust prosperous middle class were expected to result in a democratized civil aviation industry For many reasons this was never realized even as general aviation roles and aircraft capabilities expanded Despite its many reverses and struggles entrepreneurship has remained the driving factor of the industry

Religion in the History of the Medieval West John Van Engen, 2023-05-31 These ten essays by John Van Engen situate religion in the history of medieval Western Europe as an unavoidable presence in everyday life as a conceptual framework for social and political life as a force integral to its historical dynamics Four of the essays are bibliographical and retrospective in nature reviewing the field broadly but also pointing toward a more dialectical approach to understanding the interaction of religion and society in the European middle ages Other studies deal with large topics usually subsumed under the abstract term Christianization They grapple with learned sources as well as those associated with popular religion and show what can be gained from an imaginative use of all that lawyers and theologians said about religion in their society The essays finally look for the quality and dynamic of change even inventiveness released by religious action and conviction in medieval European society
