Literature in the Making Nancy Glazener, 2015-10-15 In the eighteenth century literature meant learned writings by the twentieth century literature had come to be identified with imaginative aesthetically significant works and academic literary studies had developed special protocols for interpreting and valuing literary texts Literature in the Making examines what happened in between how literature came to be more precisely specified and valued how it was organized into genres canons and national traditions and how it became the basis for departments of modern languages and literatures in research universities Modern literature the version of literature familiar today was an international invention but it was forged when literary cultures traditions and publishing industries were mainly organized nationally Literature in the Making examines modern literature's coalescence and institutionalization in the United States considered as an instructive instance of a phenomenon that was going global Since modern literature initially offered a way to formulate the value of legacy texts by authors such as Homer Cervantes and Shakespeare however the development of literature and literary culture in the U S was fundamentally transnational Literature in the Making argues that Shakespeare studies one of the richest tracts of nineteenth century U S literary culture was a key domain in which literature came to be valued both for fuelling modern projects and for safeguarding values and practices that modernity put at risk a foundational paradox that continues to shape literary studies and literary culture Bringing together the histories of literature's competing conceptualizations its print infrastructure its changing status in higher education and its life in public culture during the long nineteenth century Literature in the Making offers a robust account of how and why literature mattered then and matters now By highlighting the lively collaboration between academics and non academics that prevailed before the ascendancy of the research university starkly divided experts from amateurs Literature in the Making also opens new possibilities for envisioning how academics might partner with the reading public

The Work of Revision Hannah Sullivan, 2013-01-01 Revision might seem to be an intrinsic part of good writing But Hannah Sullivan argues that we inherit our faith in the virtues of redrafting from early twentieth century modernism Closely examining changes made in manuscripts typescripts and proofs by T S Eliot Ezra Pound Ernest Hemingway James Joyce Virginia Woolf and others she shows how modernist approaches to rewriting shaped literary style and how the impulse to touch up alter and correct can sometimes go too far In the nineteenth century revision was thought to mar a composition s originality a prejudice cultivated especially by the Romantics who believed writing should be spontaneous and organic and that rewriting indicated a failure of inspiration Rejecting such views avant garde writers of the twentieth century devoted themselves to laborious acts of rewriting both before and after publishing their work The great pains undertaken in revision became a badge of honor for writers anxious to justify the value and difficulty of their work In turn many of the distinctive effects of modernist style ellipsis fragmentation parataxis were produced by zealous experimental acts of excision and addition The early twentieth century also saw the advent of the typewriter It proved the ideal tool for extensive multi stage revisions superior even to the word processor in fostering self scrutiny and rereading across multiple drafts Tracing how master stylists from Henry James to Allen Ginsberg have approached their craft The Work of Revision reveals how techniques developed in the service of avant garde experiment have become compositional orthodoxy
