Machines A Penser:

International Communities of Invention and Innovation Arthur Tatnall, Christopher Leslie, 2016-11-30 This book contains revised selected papers presented at the IFIP WG 9.7 International Conference on the History of Computing HC 2016 held in Brooklyn NY USA in May 2016. The 13 full papers included in this volume were carefully reviewed and selected from numerous submissions. The papers cover a wide range of topics related to the history of computing and focus on the history of pre-existing relationships and communities that led to triumphs and dead ends in the history of computing. This broad perspective helps to tell a more accurate story of important developments like the Internet and provide a better understanding of how to sponsor future invention and innovation. They reflect on histories that foreground the international community along four broad themes: invention, policy, infrastructure, and social history. Philosophy and Scientific Realism J. C. Smart, 2014-04-04 Originally published in 1963. In an introductory chapter, the author argues that philosophy ought to be more than the art of clarifying thought and that it should concern itself with outlining a scientifically plausible world view. Early chapters deal with phenomenalism and the reality of theoretical entities and with the relation between the physical and biological sciences. Free will, issues of time and space, and man's place in nature are covered in later chapters. French Bibliographical Digest, 1959 Architecture Form(s) Identity Greta Allegretti, Carola D'Ambrosio, Chiara Lionello, Enrico Miglietta, Valerio Maria Sorgini, Greta Maria Taronna, 2022-08-03 Architecture form's identity. Spaces for the absence of memory is a collection of essays on the theme of memory, its possible loss, weakness, ability to build individual and collective identities, and on the way architecture inserts itself in this process, determining different spaces of reflection. These texts all arise from a common research ground which saw the editors personally involved in an inter-doctoral Workshop: The Memory as Construction of the Subject. Designing for the Absence of Memory 2018-19 with a collaboration between Politecnico di Milano AUID and the Universidad de Sevilla HAC Ph.D. schools in which the theme of memory and the construction of a more holistic space that dialogues with it was at the center of the design reflection. These contributions all built around that very rich relationship between memory and architecture have led to a necessary desire to broaden the horizons and thematic limits reached by the workshop, considering them as a starting point for the collection of different perspectives able to investigate some issues in a more specific way. Architecture Martin van der Linden, 2021-03-12 The question of what architecture is answered in this book with one sentence: Architecture is space created for human activities. The basic need to find food and water places these activities within a larger spatial field. Humans have learned and found ways to adjust to the various contextual difficulties that they faced as they roamed the earth. Thus, rather than adapting, humans have always tried to change the context to their activities. Humanity has looked at the context not merely as a limitation but rather as a spatial situation filled with opportunities that allows, through intellectual interaction, to change these limitations. Thus, humanity has created within the world their own contextual bubble that firmly stands against the larger context it is set in. The key notion of the book is that architecture is space carved out of and against the context and that this process is deterministic ,

Art as Organism Charissa N. Terranova, 2015-10-10 What if modernism had been characterised by evolving interconnected and multi sensory images rather than by the monolithic objects often described by its artists and theorists In this groundbreaking book Charissa Terranova unearths a forgotten narrative of modernism which charts the influence that biology General Systems Theory and cybernetics had on art in the twentieth century From kinetic and interactive art to early computer art and installations spanning an entire city she shows that the digital image was a rich and expansive artistic medium of modernism Vending Machines Kerry Segrave, 2015-10-05 Although the 1880s are considered the beginning of the vending machine era these devices have existed for a couple of thousand years The earliest reference to a vending machine was made by Hero a Greek mathematician physicist and engineer who probably lived in Alexandria during the first century a d who described and illustrated a coin operated device to be used for vending sacrificial water in Egyptian temples Completely automatic the device was set in operation by the insertion of a five drachma coin This work traces the history of the vending machine from its inception to its current place in popular American culture with the eight chapters covering significant eras Successes and failures of the machines economic factors influencing the popularity or lack thereof of vending machines and the struggle of industry to become a dominant large scale method of retailing products are discussed This text is richly illustrated and includes appendices on vending dollar value vending sales by location type and vending statistics

Man a Machine Julien Offray de La Mettrie, 2022-05-29 In Man a Machine Julien Offray de La Mettrie presents a provocative examination of human nature through the lens of materialism and mechanistic philosophy. Written in the 18th century, this seminal work challenges conventional notions of the soul and dualism by positing that human beings function similarly to machines governed by physical laws and impulses. La Mettrie employs a bold, accessible prose style infused with wit and sarcasm, engaging the reader while pushing the boundaries of Enlightenment thought and foreshadowing later discussions in philosophy and psychology. Julien Offray de La Mettrie, a French philosopher and physician, was significantly influenced by the burgeoning scientific advancements of his time, particularly in physiology and the natural sciences. His experiences in studying medicine and his exposure to materialist thinkers such as Hobbes and Spinoza compelled him to articulate a vision that integrated the mind and body within a singular mechanistic framework. His audacity in asserting that humans are essentially biological machines reflects a radical departure from religious interpretations of human existence, positioning him as a precursor to modern neuroscience. Man a Machine is a must-read for anyone interested in the intersections of philosophy, science, and the nature of human consciousness. La Mettrie's daring assertions and engaging style not only invite readers to question their understanding of what it means to be human but also provide foundational insights that resonate throughout contemporary debates in philosophy and cognitive science.

Machine Art in the Twentieth Century Andreas Broeckmann, 2016-12-16 An investigation of artists' engagement with technical systems, tracing art historical lineages that connect works of different periods. Machine art is neither a movement nor a genre but encompasses diverse ways in which artists engage with technical systems. In this book, Andreas Broeckmann examines a variety of twentieth and early twenty-first century artworks that articulate people's relationships with machines. In the course of his investigation, Broeckmann traces historical lineages that connect art of different periods, looking for continuities that link works from the end of the century to developments in the 1950s and 1960s and to works by avant-garde artists in the 1910s and 1920s. An art historical perspective, he argues, might change our views of recent works that seem to be driven by new media technologies but that in fact continue a century-old artistic exploration. Broeckmann investigates critical aspects of machine aesthetics that characterized machine art until the 1960s and then turns to specific domains of artistic engagement with technology: algorithms and machine autonomy, looking in particular at the work of the Canadian artist David Rokeby, vision and image, and the advent of technical imaging and the human body, using the work of the Australian artist Stelarc as an entry point to art that couples the machine to the body mechanically or cybernetically. Finally, Broeckmann argues that systems thinking and ecology have brought about a fundamental shift in the meaning of technology, which has brought with it a rethinking of human subjectivity. He examines a range of artworks, including those by the Japanese artist Seiko Mikami, whose work exemplifies the shift.
