Reducing Urban Poverty in the Global South David Satterthwaite, Diana Mitlin, 2013-08-15 Urban areas in the Global South now house most of the world's urban population and are projected to house almost all its increase between now and 2030 There is a growing recognition that the scale of urban poverty has been overlooked and that it is increasing both in numbers and in the proportion of the world's poor population that live and work in urban areas This is the first book to review the effectiveness of different approaches to reducing urban poverty in the Global South It describes and discusses the different ways in which national and local governments international agencies and civil society organizations are seeking to reduce urban poverty Different approaches are explored for instance market approaches welfare rights based approaches and technical professional support The book also considers the roles of clientelism and of social movements Case studies illustrate different approaches and explore their effectiveness Reducing Urban Poverty in the Global South also analyses the poverty reduction strategies developed by organized low income groups especially those living in informal settlements It explains how they and the federations or networks they have formed have demonstrated new approaches that have challenged adverse political relations and negotiated more effective support Local and national governments and international agencies can become far more effective at addressing urban poverty at scale by as is proposed in this book working with and supporting the urban poor and their organizations This book will be an invaluable resource for researchers and postgraduate students in urban development poverty reduction urban geography and for practitioners and organisations working in urban development programmes in the Global South

Congressional Record United States. Congress, 1998

Urban Poverty and Transport, 2005 This paper reports the results of a survey of 5 000 households in the Greater Mumbai Region conducted in the winter of 2004 The goal of the survey was to better understand the demand for transport services by the poor the factors affecting this demand and the inter linkages between transport decisions and other vital decisions such as where to live and work This paper the first of several research outputs describes the salient facts about travel patterns in Mumbai for both poor and non poor households A striking finding of the survey is the extent to which all households especially poor households rely on walking Overall 44 percent of commuters in Mumbai walk to work The proportion of the poor who walk to work is even higher 63 percent

Walking is an even higher modal share for nonwork than for work trips Urban Poverty in Africa Mary Gachochi, 1999
This volume represents a selection of papers presented at the Africa Regional Workshop on Urban Poverty held in Nairobi Kenya in September 1998 The papers are the outputs of the regional programme supported by UNCHS Habitat and the Ford Foundation since 1992 The papers published in this volume analyse urban poverty trends in East and Southern Africa and review different strategies that countries and cities have pursued to address urban poverty
