Research in Education ,1973 Resources in Education ,1998 Resetting targets Jonathan Michael Bradley Stern,Benjamin Piper,2019-04-18 This paper uses recent evidence from international early grade reading programs to provide guidance about how best to create appropriate targets and more effectively identify improved program outcomes Recent results show that World Bank and US Agency for International Development funded large scale international education interventions in low and middle income countries tend to produce larger impacts than do interventions in the United States as measured by effect sizes However these effect sizes rarely translate into large gains in mean oral reading fluency scores and are associated with only small increases in the proportion of students meeting country level reading benchmarks The limited impact of these low and middle income countries reading programs on the proportion of students meeting reading benchmarks is in large part caused by right skewed distributions of student reading scores In other words modest impacts on the proportion of students meeting benchmarks are caused by low mean scores and large proportions of nonreaders at baseline It is essential to take these factors into consideration when setting program targets for reading fluency and comprehension We recommend that program designers in lower performing countries use baseline assessment data to develop benchmarks based on multiple performance categories that allow for more ambitious targets focused on reducing nonreaders and increasing beginning readers with more modest targets aimed at improving oral reading fluency scores and increasing the percentage of proficient readers Comprehensive Dissertation Index ,1989 Journal of Developmental & Remedial Education ,1981 Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,2002 EdPsych Modules Cheryl Cisero Durwin,Marla Reese-Weber,2016-12-01 Now with SAGE Publications Cheryl Cisero Durwin and Marla Reese Weber s EdPsych Modules uses an innovative implementation of case studies and a modular format to address the challenge of effectively connecting theory and research to practice Each module is a succinct stand alone topic that represents every subject found in traditional chapter texts and can be used in any order for maximum flexibility in organizing your course Each of the book s eight units of modules begins with a set of four case studies early childhood elementary middle school and secondary and ends with Assess and Reflect and Evaluate questions and activities to encourage comprehension and application of the research and theories presented The case approach and the extensive pedagogy that support it allows students to constantly see the applications of the theories and research that they are studying in the text Resources in Education ,1995 Cognitive Rehabilitation for Persons with Traumatic Brain Injury Jeffrey S.
