Department of Defense,U. S. Air Force (USAF),U. S. Government,2017-01-16 On 7 December 1941 the Day of Infamy the United States and its armed forces were plunged into the most costly war in history The Air Force story of 7 December is told in its entirety for the first time in this fascinating volume Often times the heroism and anguish of airmen at Wheeler Hickam and Bellows have been overshadowed by the main event the attack on Pearl Harbor itself 7 December 1941 The Air Force Story corrects this oversight The Japanese attack on the airfields of Oahu was an integral part of their overall plan and their objectives were achieved The Hawaiian Air Force was dealt a crippling blow despite often heroic efforts to counter the attack But we recovered quickly and soon air power was to play a major role in winning the war in the Pacific theater Today 7 December stands as an important symbol in our history The day of infamy reminds us of the need to maintain the nation s defense at a high state of readiness It also symbolizes the beginning of nearly four years of war in the Pacific in a geographical area stretching from the Aleutians to Australia Few people understand why the Hawaiian Air Force was so unprepared to accomplish its air defense mission or realize the extent of the damage and casualties it sustained on that Day of Infamy This book is an attempt to remedy that situation and the events and actions of the US Army Air Forces on 7 December are told in the following pages In this writing we have attempted to answer several important questions Why was the Imperial Japanese Navy able to devastate the Hawaiian Air Force with little to no opposition Why was the American air arm with over 200 aircraft including long range bombers six radar stations a trained ground observer unit and extensive anti-aircraft weapons units unable to perform its primary job of protecting the fleet Why were all available aircraft unarmed and lined up like sitting ducks on the flight line at each base Why were the radar stations shut down at 0700 on the morning of the attack Where was the central fighter control unit and why was it not activated prior to the attack To a large extent this work is based on primary source documentation We have included numerous anecdotes from firsthand accounts of individuals who were stationed at Hawaiian Air Force installations prior to and during the attack They provide insight into military life during an assignment in Paradise which turned into a Hell in Paradise on 7 December 1941 We hope these tales of horror heroism fear and even humor bring to life the events of that day Our story begins with a look at the overall position of the Hawaiian Air Force before that fateful morning its leadership assigned personnel and aircraft and air defense system Next we examine in detail the three main airfields on Oahu Hickam Wheeler and Bellows to determine what duty was like at these installations training activities the condition of equipment and morale of the men We then go into the actual attack first describing the overall action then detailing what occurred at each of the major bases concluding with a discussion of events that took place after the attack

7 December 1941 Leatrice Arakaki,John Kuborn,2012-02-12 On 7 December 1941 the Day of Infamy the United States and its armed forces were plunged into the most costly war in history On the 50th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Oahu the Air Force story of 7 December 1941 is told in its entirety for the first time Often times the heroism and anguish of airmen at Wheeler Hickam and Bellows have been overshadowed by the main event the attack on Pearl Harbor itself The Japanese attack on the airfields of Oahu was an integral part of their overall plan and their objectives were achieved The Hawaiian Air Force was dealt a crippling blow despite heroic efforts to counter that attack Today 7 December stands as an important symbol in our history 7 December 1941 Leatrice R. Arakaki,2011

December 7 1941 was by an assessment a devastating day The Hawaiian Air Force suffered a crippling blow but the genesis of recovery and final victory over the enemy emerged in the valor of those who weathered the onslaught and fought back with everything they had In the 50 years since then the attack has become a faded memory for some and to many members of the younger generation just another moment in history It deserves better understanding and commemoration however for this sudden damaging strike on our forces marked the beginning of America s involvement in a terrible global war that was massive in scope and destruction Literature on the 7 December 1941 Japanese attack that launched the United States into World War II is extensive Japan s primary objective that day was to cripple the US Fleet anchored at Pearl Harbor and the Navy s experience during the attack has been chronicled in detail Control of the air over the island of Oahu was essential to the success of the attack but documentation on Army Air Forces involvement has been sparse and often fragmented Consequently few people understand why the Hawaiian Air Force was so unprepared to accomplish its air defense mission or realize the extent of the damage and casualties it sustained on that Day of Infamy This book is an attempt to remedy that situation and the events and actions of the US Army Air Forces on 7 December are told in this publication In this writing several important question are addressed Why was the Imperial Japanese Navy able to devastate the Hawaiian Air Force with little or no opposition Why was the American air arm with over 200 aircraft including long range bombers six radar stations a trained ground observer unit and extensive antiaircraft weapons units unable to perform its primary job of protecting the fleet Why are all available aircraft unarmed and lined up like sitting ducks on the flight line at each base Why were the radar stations shut down at 0700 on the morning of the attack Where was the central fighter control unit and why was it not activated prior to the attack

7 December 1941 Leatrice R. Arakaki,John R. Kuborn,2014-05-19 December 7 1941 was by an assessment a devastating day The Hawaiian Air Force suffered a crippling blow but the genesis of recovery and final victory over the enemy emerged in the valor of those who weathered the onslaught and fought back with everything they had In the 50 years since then the attack has become a faded memory for some and to many members of the younger generation just another moment in history It deserves better understanding and commemoration however for this sudden damaging strike on our forces marked the beginning of America s involvement in a terrible global war that was massive in scope and destruction Literature on the 7 December 1941 Japanese attack that launched the United States into World War II is extensive Japan s primary objective that day was to cripple the US Fleet anchored at Pearl Harbor and the Navy s experience during the attack has been chronicled in detail Control of the air over the island of Oahu was essential to the success of the attack but documentation on Army Air Forces involvement has been sparse and often fragmented Consequently few people understand why the Hawaiian Air Force was so unprepared to accomplish its air defense mission or realize the extent of the damage and casualties it sustained on that Day of Infamy This book is an attempt to remedy that situation and the events and actions of the US Army Air Forces on 7 December are told in this publication In this writing several important question are addressed Why was the Imperial Japanese Navy able to devastate the Hawaiian Air Force with little or no opposition Why was the American air arm with over 200 aircraft including long range bombers six radar stations a trained ground observer unit and extensive anti-aircraft weapons units unable to perform its primary job of protecting the fleet Why are all available aircraft unarmed and lined up like sitting ducks on the flight line at each base Why were the radar stations shut down at 0700 on the morning of the attack Where was the central fighter control unit and why was it not activated prior to the attack

7 December 1941 United States United States Air Forces, 2015-07-08 On 7 December 1941 the Japanese caught the Hawaiian Air Force completely by surprise Although diplomatic relations with Japan were at a standstill and many people felt war was just around the corner Hawaii attitude maintained a Conversely business as usual the Japanese understood the importance of the American Fleet stationed at Pearl Harbor and devised a plan to destroy it To reach the fleet they would need to destroy the Hawaiian Air Force To destroy this force they would need surprise and luck Japan would achieve the surprise and fate would give them the luck they required The Hawaiian Department had the forces leadership and equipment to stop the attack or at least make it very expensive But fate in a series of decisions events and personalities would step in to prevent them from ever being used The Japanese use of air power on 7 December 1941 resulted in a decisive if short lived one sided victory indeed from their perspective as decisive as any air battle that would be fought over the next four years

Michael Slackman, 1991-07-01 Target Pearl Harbor takes a fresh look at the air raid that plunged America into World War II by scrutinizing the decisions and attitudes that prompted the attack and left the United States unprepared to mount a successful defense The core of the book concerns the events of December 7 1941 as seen through the eyes of participants both American and Japanese military and civilian The author's use of contemporary documents and interviews with survivors has enabled him to present a vivid and evocative picture of that day

Adopting the Track of Term: An Emotional Symphony within Seven December 1941 The Air Force Story

In some sort of taken by screens and the ceaseless chatter of immediate transmission, the melodic beauty and mental symphony created by the prepared word usually disappear in to the backdrop, eclipsed by the constant noise and interruptions that permeate our lives. Nevertheless, nestled within the pages of Seven December 1941 The Air Force Story a stunning literary prize brimming with organic emotions, lies an immersive symphony waiting to be embraced. Constructed by an elegant musician of language, that charming masterpiece conducts viewers on a psychological journey, skillfully unraveling the concealed songs and profound influence resonating within each cautiously constructed phrase. Within the depths with this poignant examination, we shall explore the book is central harmonies, analyze their enthralling writing fashion, and surrender ourselves to the profound resonance that echoes in the depths of readers souls.
