Serving Children And Families Through Community University Partnerships Success Stories:

Serving Children and Families Through Community-University Partnerships Thomas R. Chibucos, Richard M.

Lerner, 2012-12-06 A consistently identified criticism about contemporary higher education is that academia is not playing a visible role in contributing to the improvement of the lives of people in the community as the lives are lived on a day to day basis. However, there has been a long tradition of such Outreach Scholarship in America and this focus is gaining renewed attention at least in part because policy makers and philanthropic organizations are pressing universities and colleges to use their learning resources in ways that more directly benefit society. Universities have listened to and continue to heed such appeals. Serving Children and Families Through Community University Partnerships Success Stories illustrates such work by presenting several dozen exemplary success stories of community university partnerships that serve to enhance the lives of children, youth, and families. These illustrations are drawn from collaborations across the breadth of the nation and reflect the work of many diverse colleges and universities. Moreover, these partnerships involve an array of target audiences ranging across the individual life span from infancy through old age and involving a diverse set of groups and organizations. In addition, this work takes many forms, for example, technical assistance, evaluation, training, program design and delivery, demonstration, or participatory action research and dissemination. The book is useful to two broad audiences: 1. Individuals in and out of academia in decision-making roles that directly impact what gets done or does not get done in colleges and universities; and 2. Persons outside academia who are concerned with creating positive change across a wide range of issues pertinent to the lives of youth, families, and communities. This volume will guide universities and communities to work together to promote positive development in the diverse children, families, and communities of our nation. Serving Children and Families Through Community-University Partnerships Thomas R. University-Community Partnerships Tracy Soska, Alice K. Johnson Butterfield, 2013-05-13 Examine how your university can help solve the complex problems of your community. Community Outreach Partnership Centers (COPC) sponsored by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) have identified civic engagement and community partnership as critical themes for higher education. This unique book addresses past, present, and future models of university-community partnerships. COPC programs, wide-ranging social work partnerships that involve teaching, research, and social change, and innovative methods in the processes of civic engagement. The text recognizes the many professions, schools, and higher education institutions that contribute to advancing civic engagement through university-community partnerships. One important contribution this book makes to the literature of civic engagement is that it is the first publication that significantly highlights partnership contributions from schools of social work which are rediscovering their community roots through these initiatives. University Community Partnerships: Universities in Civic Engagement documents how universities are involved in creative individual faculty and program partnerships that help link campus and community partnerships that are vital for teaching research and practice Academics and practitioners discuss outreach initiatives methods of engagement with an emphasis on community organization service learning and other teaching learning methods research models participatory research and high engagement techniques used in university community partnerships The book includes case studies historical studies policy analysis program evaluation and curriculum development University Community Partnerships Universities in Civic Engagement examines the increasing civic engagement of institutions of higher education civic engagement projects involving urban nonprofit community based organizations and neighborhood associations the developmental stages of a COPC partnership problems faced in evaluating COPC programs civic engagement based on teaching and learning how pre tenure faculty can meet research teaching and service requirements through university community partnerships developing an MSW program structured around a single concentration of community partnership how class race and organizational differences are barriers to equality in the civic engagement process University Community Partnerships Universities in Civic Engagement is one of the few available academic resources to address the importance of social work involvement in COPC programs Social work educators students and practitioners community organizers urban planners and anyone working in community development will find it invaluable in providing guidance for community problem solving and creating opportunities for faculty students and community residents to learn from one another

Children of Divorce John H. Harvey,Mark A. Fine,2004-04-12 Children of Divorce features excerpts of stories collected from hundreds of young people The narratives embrace such themes as despair chaos in the family and missing dads The volume paints a picture of the pain the hope and the resiliency shown by young adults while in the throes of divorce and in the years to follow These poignant narratives are framed by an analysis of the most recent divorce literature The book clearly demonstrates the value of storytelling in helping people deal with major loss events in their lives The authors hope is that by examining these experiences we will gain a greater understanding of the effects of divorce and ultimately strengthen relationships in the future This book challenges the contention that most children will be irretrievably hurt by their parents divorce Presenting a mixture of young people s voices demonstrating the great variety of reactions to parental divorce it shows the strength and resilience many of these young people have learned in surviving the pain surrounding divorce in their families Emphasis is placed on how hope about the possibilities of having close relationships as well as a willingness to try to have stronger families in their own adult lives represent abiding motivations in this sample of young people Providing an overarching theoretical emphasis on the value of storytelling for people dealing with major losses the authors hope that this method of stressing the raw input of respondents will make the experiences more vivid and realistic to the reader

Murray, 2012-12-06 Lawton Chiles Governor of Florida 1991 1998 Social Change Public Policy and Community Collaborations Training Human Development Professionals for the Twenty First Century is more than the name of the Third National Applied Developmental Science Conference it is more than the name of a book prepared from the proceedings of this conference It describes one of the largest and most complex challenges facing state government higher education and communities in the coming decade The answer to this challenge will not be found in a college or program in our higher education institution nor in laws conceived and written in state capitals The answers to this challenge are to be found at the place where academia public policy and communities meet The problems and issues that are facing our children and families will require that all the players work together to develop community driven programs designed and evaluated using current research and staffed by highly trained professionals It will be critical that academia policy makers legislators and community members work together to ensure that the programs we design work We must ensure that research is being conducted so that programs that work better are continued and programs that don't are stopped

Evidence-Based Policymaking Karen Bogenschneider, Thomas Corbett, 2011-01-11 This book is for those who believe that good government should be based on hard evidence and that research and policy ought to go hand in hand Unfortunately no such bond exists Rather there is a substantial gap some say chasm between the production of knowledge and its utilization Despite much contrary evidence the authors propose there is a way of doing public policy in a more reflective manner and that a hunger for evidence and objectivity does exist The book is pragmatic drawing on advice from some of the best and brightest informants from both the research and policy communities In their own voices researchers provide incisive analysis about how to bridge the research policy divide and policymakers provide insights about why they use research what kind is most useful where they seek it and how they screen its quality The book breaks through stereotypes about what policymakers are like and provides an insiders view of how the policy process really works Readers will learn what knowledge skills approaches and attitudes are needed to take research findings from the laboratory to lawmaking bodies and how to evaluate one s success in doing so The book s balance between theory and practice will appeal to students in graduate and upper level undergraduate courses in family studies and family policy educational policy law political science public administration public health social work and sociology This book will also be of interest to researchers who want to bring their ideas into policy debate and to those who work with policymakers to advance an evidence based policy agenda Learning to Serve Maureen E.
