

the English: (Watson, 29) '... When the sea begins to move, this bird sets off for the southern darkness, which is the Lake of Heaven.'

The Universal Harmony records various wonders, and it says: "When the P'eng journeys to the southern darkness, the waters are roiled for three thousand li. He beats the whirlwind and rises ninety thousand li, setting off on the sixth-month gale." Wavering heat, bits of dust, living things blowing each other about—the sky looks very blue. Is that its real colour, or is it because it is so far away and has no end? When the bird looks down, all he sees is blue too'.

A further weakness is that although Burton Watson appreciates Chuang-tzū as a writer, and has a literary man's sympathy with the Taoist attitude to life, he does not seem to be much interested in Chuang-tzū as a philosopher. He remarks on 'the pseudo-logical discussion or debate that starts out sounding completely rational and sober, and ends by reducing language to gibbering inanity' (p. 5). But there is plenty of genuine logic in Chuang-tzū; it is generally invisible in this translation, with the result that Chuang-tzū's mockery of logic also loses much of its force. It does not seem to worry Burton Watson that, for example, the famous dialogue on whether we can know that the fish are happy, with its rigorously logical beginning, does not in this version end in 'gibbering inanity', but simply trails away inconsequentially (p. 189).<sup>1</sup> Arguments which are clear enough in the original disappear in the English because of a lack of interest in the problem of reproducing technical terminology. Thus in ch. 2 Chuang-tzū argues that since what from one standpoint is shih 是 'it' is from other standpoints pi 彼 'other', all questions of shih/fei 是非 'that's it, that's not' are relative to standpoint. How to re-create this argument in English is a very difficult problem; but it is plain that if, like Burton Watson, one renders shih/pi by 'this/that' and shih/fei by 'right/wrong' (perfectly acceptable equivalents in ordinary contexts, but not when the whole argument hinges on the word shih common to both pairs) any hope of following a consecutive line of thought will be lost.

Is there any possibility that Burton Watson might follow his two versions of Chuang-tzū by a third, one containing all and no more than the parts of the book in which he is confident of following the drift? Such a selection from the present book would be very good, the best presentation of Chuangtzū available in English, superseding the shorter selection in Waley's Three ways of thought in ancient China. At the present stage of research a complete translation gives a much more misleading picture of Chuang-tzū than a partial one, because what still looks like nonsense in Chinese, until someone finds the key, is nonsense when put directly into English. One of the reasons why Waley was the greatest translator from Chinese is that he would never touch anything of which he could not make sense in English, a very simple rule which few of us succeed in observing consistently. He avoided Chuang-tzū except for selected parts, for the reason stated in a passage which Burton Watson quotes without apparently recognizing its implications: 'Unfortunately the text itself is so corrupt as to be frequently quite unintelligible. I have used only such passages as are completely intelligible or which need merely trivial and occasional correction' (Waley, 256, quoted Watson, 21).

A. C. GRAHAM

J. W. F. MULDER: Sets and relations in phonology: an axiomatic approach to the description of speech. xv, 259 pp. + errata slip. Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1968. 63s.

The present work cannot be regarded simply as a partial contribution to phonology, i.e. as an attempt to elucidate the possibilities (and possibly restrictions) of applying modern exact methodological procedures (mathematical logic, set theory, and relation theory) to research in the domain of phonology, pursued in the 'traditional' way of the European—more especially 'Neo-Prague'—linguistic school, as represented e.g. by A. Martinet. It is rather a work which attempts to advance the over-all system of linguistic concepts of this school a step forward, and I assume that the work has been successful. I suspect that the author's work was also fruitfully influenced by the fact that he is a sinologist and that he has chosen Pekingese as a means of exemplification of his methodological procedures, especially in view of the relatively clear and unambiguous status of the basic distributional unit—syllable—in Pekingese.

The work contains an introduction (pp. 1–21) and eight chapters of rather different character. In my view, two chapters must be considered as the core of the work: 'Some basic principles and grammatical background' (ch. i, pp. 22–95) and 'Classificatory calculus and ordering relations' (ch. iii, pp. 115–42).

In the former chapter, the author continues

Punctuation as a Means of Medium-Dependent Presentation Structure in English Sebastian Patt, 2013-04-24 Despite its everyday relevance the reputation of punctuation is tarnished Actually modern English punctuation is often considered not more than a necessary evil For many people punctuation usage follows seemingly arbitrary and unmotivated rules The present approach moves away from a static rulebased description towards a more dynamic contextbased interpretation of punctuation Punctuation is a highly versatile medium dependent means of presentational choice To accept this view is to take a significant step towards closing the gap that still exists between punctuational theory and the actual usage of punctuation Punctuation adopts a guiding role for the reader and the present study explores this guide potential providing a thorough analysis of both the linguistic status and the communicative value of punctuation

The Theory of Neutralization and the Archiphoneme in Functional Phonology Tsutomu Akamatsu, 1988-01-01 The theory of neutralization and the archiphoneme is well known to have been expounded by the Prague School It is now being fully accepted and practised by A Martinet and his associates to whom Akamatsu refers as the neo Prague School The objective is to propose a maximally functionalist theory of neutralization and the archiphoneme by submitting to critical discussion from a functional point of view all the principal notions pertaining to this theory in its traditionally professed form The author comes up with a theory of neutralization and the archiphoneme which is fundamentally based on but is clearly different from that which is normally associated with the Prague School and the neo Prague School Semiotic Perspectives Sándor Hervey, 2016-11-18 First published in 1982 this book looks at a wide variety of issues concerning the vast field of study that is semiotics It begins by tracing the beginnings of modern semiotics in the works two pioneering figures Saussure and Peirce in order to present fundamental assumptions notions and distinctions which provide an essential background to the more recent developments The author then goes on to look at Behavioural Semiotics Luis Prieto s idea of l Acte Semique Austin s theory of Speech Acts and Searle s elaborations Barthes move away from philosophical and scientific approaches in his ideology of Socio Cultural Signification Functionalism and Axiomatic Functionalism style as a form of communication semiotics of the cinema and communicative behaviour in non human species Progress in Linguistic Historiography E. F. K. and the cognitive and semantic aspects of ditransitivity This approach is combined with modern corpus linguistic methodology in the present study which draws on an exhaustive semi automatic analysis of all patterns of ditransitive verbs in the British component of the International Corpus of English ICE GB and also takes into account selected data from the British National Corpus BNC In the second part of the study the complementation of ditransitive verbs e g give send is analysed quantitatively and qualitatively Special emphasis is placed here on the identification of significant principles of pattern selection i e factors that lead language users to prefer specific patterns over other patterns in given contexts e g weight focus pattern flow in text lexical constraints In the last part some general aspects of a network like usage based model of ditransitive verbs their patterns and the relevant principles of pattern selection are sketched out thus bridging the gap between the performance related description of language use and a competence related model of language cognition
