Background: The impact of endovascular revascularization of the lower extremity arteries with atherectomy (AT) compared with percutaneous transluminal angioplasty (PTA) is still unclear. Therefore, the aim of the study was to compare long-term outcomes after percutaneous PTA and AT in patients requiring endovascular revascularization.

Methods and Results: This was a single-center, retrospective registry of obstructive and symptomatic PAD patients who underwent endovascular revascularization. PTA was performed in 215 patients, and AT in 204 (Silver Hawk, EV3, n=125; CSI 360°, n=66; Pathway Medical Technologies, n=13). There were no significant between-group differences in baseline characteristics except for increased CAD, dialysis and CLI prevalence in the PTA group. Following propensity score analysis 131 well-matched pairs were included in analysis. Bail-out stenting was more frequent in the reference group (PTA, 6.1% vs. AT, 0%; $P=0.004$). At 6- and 12-month follow-up there were no differences in TLR between the groups (PTA, 8.3% vs. AT, 5.3%; $P=0.47$; and PTA, 16.7% vs. AT, 13.7%; $P=0.73$, respectively). The difference was in favor of AT at 24-month follow-up (PTA, 29.0% vs. AT, 16.7%; $P=0.05$). No difference was observed in amputation rate (PTA, 0.7% vs. AT, 1.5%; $P=0.62$). On Kaplan-Meier analysis there were no significant differences between groups in time to TLR, amputation or death.

Conclusions: AT was associated with lower risk of TLR, and this should be confirmed in randomized controlled trials.

According to recent clinical practice and evidence, endovascular revascularization of the lower limb arteries has superseded surgical procedures.^{1,2} Regardless of advancement in endovascular technology, restenosis and the need for repeat revascularization are still challenging. Moreover, the mortality in peripheral artery disease (PAD), especially in critical limb ischemia (CLI), is high, fluctuating at around 20% at 6-month follow-up, and exceeding 50% within 5 years from diagnosis.^{3,4} These numbers increase in patients with coexisting symptomatic coronary artery disease (CAD). Additionally, CLI is associated with poor quality of life⁵ and high treatment costs.⁶ Nowadays, multiple therapies for PAD have emerged, including pharmacological regimens, endovascular and open surgery, drug-coated balloons (DCB), and stem cell therapy.⁷ On top of that, stenting has become popular, due to the reassuring early outcome. In contrast, in the femoropopliteal artery mechanical stress is high, thus implanted stents are exposed to the risk of stent fracture and malformation, increasing the rate of restenosis.^{8,9} In the below-the-knee (BTK) region, use of metal, balloon-expandable drug-eluting stents is more common than the self-expandable nitinol ones, because those stents are even more susceptible to fracture. Moreover, due to the characteristics of BTK lesions, in most cases multiple stents are needed.¹⁰ Therefore, atherectomy (AT), which removes the atherosclerotic plaque from the arterial wall, appears to be promising. This expectancy is linked to the fact that these devices cut out the plaque from the artery wall, thus significantly increasing lumen diameter and removing potential sources of inflammation, thus facilitating satisfactory outcome.¹¹

Thus far, the long-term outcomes after endovascular

Long Term Results Of Arterial Interventions:

Long-Term Results of Arterial Interventions Alain Branchereau, MD, Michael Jacobs, MD, 1997-10-07 This volume is particularly valuable as a current standard reference. It covers all the major vascular operations: carotid endarterectomy, aortoiliac reconstructions and infrainguinal bypasses in situ and reversed vein, Dacron and PTFE prosthetic thoracic and abdominal bypasses, matching each to its competing endovascular procedure. In addition, it provides excellent long-term data on such less common procedures as internal carotid bypass, vertebral artery revascularization, adjunctive procedures to enhance the patency of infrainguinal prosthetic bypass, and percutaneous intentional extraluminal revascularization. Finally, this framework is reinforced by in-depth chapters on current non-interventional management, surveillance programs to enhance long-term patency, and the ultimate challenge for all practicing vascular surgeons: the management of infected aortic grafts. Such clear, comprehensive, and current analysis should be of considerable and ongoing value both by helping vascular surgeons to make more effective decisions and to more knowledgeably discuss functional results, complication risks, life expectancy, and surgical outcome issues with the patient and family. Peripheral Arterial Interventions Nicolas W. Shammass, 2022-10-13 This book examines new technologies, device and pharmacologic that have evolved over the past few years in treating peripheral arterial disease. Chapters offer optimal strategies to treat PAD supported by peer-reviewed data. The pillars of this strategy will focus on a changing vessel compliance to allow better lumen expansion, less recoil, and dissections, and less bailout stenting. Chapters also review embolic protection devices and apply the adjunctive use of anti-proliferative therapy to maintain good long-term outcomes. In addition, the book reviews drug-coated balloons and drug-eluting stent technologies and other means of drug delivery into the vessel wall. The goal of this book is to discuss all these emerging technologies under the strategy of treating patients with the focus on both acute and long-term outcomes. Featuring world-renown experts, this book offers a critical and comprehensive overview of the current data and future directions that would pave the way for optimal PAD management. Peripheral Arterial Interventions is an essential resource for physicians, residents, fellows, and medical students in cardiology, radiology, vascular surgery, primary care, and health promotion and disease prevention, as well as internal and vascular medicine specialists. Cardiovascular Interventions in Clinical Practice Jürgen Haase, Hans-Joachim Schäfers, Horst Sievert, Ron Waksman, 2010-04-01 Until the publication of this exciting volume, new treatment modalities in the rapidly growing field of interventional cardiology were described based on individual research findings. Now a multidisciplinary team of international experts puts catheter-based treatment techniques in context by exploring the pathobiology of specific diseases alongside a discussion of imaging tools and functional tests and a comparison to alternative treatment approaches provided by cardiovascular surgery. This comprehensive overview of interventional cardiology represents a landmark in the field. Image-Guided Interventions E-Book Matthew A. Mauro, Kieran P.J. Murphy, Kenneth R. Thomson, Anthony C.
