Malone, Rohinton Medhora, 2014 A central premise is that an objective and universally accepted measure of success in development and paths to it does not exist      UN Voices Thomas G. advances for women at either the international or national levels is particularly difficult where practical measures are not subsequently implemented This is perhaps attributable to a lack of political will Important issues such as gender equality and domestic violence are not given priority and laws aimed at protecting women and promoting women s rights are ineffective scant or unenforced Gender justice can only be realized through a multilevel approach from above and more importantly from below as women have the potential to effect real national and international legal and institutional change to ensure gender equality at both levels     Activists beyond Borders Margaret E. Keck, Kathryn Sikkink, 2014-01-17 In Activists beyond Borders Margaret E Keck and Kathryn Sikkink examine a type of pressure group that has been largely ignored by political analysts networks of activists that coalesce and operate across national frontiers Their targets may be international organizations or the policies of particular states Historical examples of such transborder alliances include anti slavery and woman suffrage campaigns In the past two decades transnational activism has had a significant impact in human rights especially in Latin America and advocacy networks have strongly influenced environmental politics as well The authors also examine the emergence of an international campaign around violence against women
