Constructing Community Alison E. Rautman, 2014-11-27 In central New Mexico tourists admire the majestic ruins of old Spanish churches and historic pueblos at Abo Quarai and Gran Quivira in Salinas Pueblo Missions National Monument The less imposing remains of the earliest Indian farming settlements however have not attracted nearly as much notice from visitors or from professional archaeologists In Constructing Community Alison E Rautman synthesizes over twenty years of research about this little known period of early sedentary villages in the Salinas region Rautman tackles a very broad topic how archaeologists use material evidence to infer and imagine how people lived in the past how they coped with everyday decisions and tensions and how they created a sense of themselves and their place in the world Using several different lines of evidence she reconstructs what life was like for the Ancestral Pueblo people of Salinas and identifies some of the specific strategies that they used to develop and sustain their villages over time Examining evidence of each site s construction and developing spatial layout Rautman traces changes in community organization across the architectural transitions from pithouses to jacal structures to unit pueblos and finally to plaza oriented pueblos She finds that in contrast to some other areas of the American Southwest early villagers in Salinas repeatedly managed their built environment to emphasize the coherence and unity of the village as a whole In this way she argues people in early farming villages across the Salinas region actively constructed and sustained a sense of social community Census of Porto Rico United States.
