Ramanathan, 1915 Religious Offences in Common Law Asia Li-ann Thio, Jaclyn L Neo, 2021-02-25 This book provides in depth comparative analysis of how religious penal clauses have been developed and employed within Asian common law states and the impact of such developments on constitutional rights By examining the theoretical and conceptual underpinnings of religious offences as well as interrogating the nature and impact of religious penal clauses within the region it contributes to the broader dialogue in relation to religious penal clauses globally whether in countries which practise forms of secular or religious constitutionalism Asian practice is significant in this respect given the centrality of religion to social life and indeed in some jurisdictions to constitutional or national identity Providing rigorous studies of common law jurisdictions that have adopted similar provisions in their penal code the contributors provide an original examination and analysis of the use and development of these religious clauses in their respective jurisdictions They draw upon their insights into the background sociopolitical and constitutional contexts to consider how the inter relationship of religion and state may determine the rationale and scope of religious offences These country by country chapters inform the conceptual examination of religious views and sentiments as a basis for criminality and the forms of harm that attract legal safeguards Several chapters examine these questions from a historical and comparative perspective considering the underlying bases and scope as well as evolving objectives of these provisions Through these examinations the book critically interrogates the legacy of colonialism on the criminal law and constitutional practice of various Asian states Martial Law in India, Pakistan and Ceylon Joseph Minattur, 2012-12-06 i
