Effective Risk Communication Timothy L. Sellnow, Robert R. Ulmer, Matthew W. Seeger, Robert Littlefield, 2008-12-05 Coordination of risk assessments and risk communication strategies requires information sharing and establishing networks of working relationships between groups and agencies Establishing these relationships necessitates overcoming institutional cultural and political boundaries Significant barriers exist between regulatory agencies and industry groups Traditionally these groups have mistrusted one another and cooperation and collaboration including sharing information correspondingly has been limited The adoption of radio frequency identification technology for tracking livestock for example has been met with significant resistance due in part to mistrust between regulatory agencies and producers Veil 2006 In the food industry the need for coordination has been enhanced by industry integration and globalization of both markets and production In the case of GM foods discussed earlier disagreements between U S European Union and Canadian regulatory agencies fueled the debate over the safety of GM crops Overcoming institutional and cultural barriers and mistrust is necessary to create consistency in risk messages Open communication and information sharing can help clarify where risk perceptions diverge and identify points of convergence The outcome may not be universal agreement about risks but convergence around the general parameters of risk Summary These best practice strategies of risk communication are not designed to function as distinct steps or isolated approaches Rather than being mutually exclusive they serve to complement one another and create a coherent approach to confronting risk communication problems

Enabling People-Centered Risk Communication for Geohazards Alessandro Amato, Sally H. Potter, Anna Scolobig, Eric M. Thompson, 2024-07-18 In the field of natural hazards communicating science with the public and stakeholders involves entering the challenging and complex world of hazard and risk communication the ultimate purpose of which is to reduce the impact of impending hazards on people at risk

According to the Sendai Framework 2015 2030 it is important to strengthen the utilization of media including social media traditional media big data and mobile phone networks to support national measures for successful disaster risk communication Sometimes risk communication has collateral and unexpected side effects that may lead to the adoption of inadequate behaviors In some instances this can even result in legal actions being taken against scientists and or emergency managers The role of the media should be to facilitate the accurate communication of hazard and risk information but such communication is often hampered by the fact that journalists have different agendas and priorities than scientists risk communicators and emergency managers This does not always support people in their decision making Accurate communication of hazard and risk is especially important when decisions have to be made within contexts where uncertainty is very high This is often the case with geohazards such as earthquakes tsunamis volcanic eruptions and landslides
