Sara Myers, 2024 Beginning with Cicero and Varro and ending with Statius and Pliny the Younger this chapter offers a chronological investigation of the ways in which real and literary gardens developed from the first century BCE to the first century CE as a means of elite masculine self representation and the reactions of elite Roman men to the increased social and cultural power of villa and horti estates and their grounds Gardens served as powerful symbols of wealth and as creative displays of the cultural aspirations of their owners in ways that challenged traditional definitions of gardens and of Roman manliness Since these large scale gardens are primarily associated with leisure otium authors are concerned with describing and justifying their activities in these sites as befitting Roman masculine ideals We can trace a change in attitude towards leisure and the private display of wealth and consequently gardens largely attributed to changes in the socio political circumstances of the

Roman elite in the works of Statius and his contemporary Pliny the Younger who use laudatory descriptions of extensive villas and grounds as a means of expressing social and literary power
