The Internet and Philosophy of Science Wenceslao J Gonzalez, 2022-10-18 From the perspective of the philosophy of science this book analyzes the Internet conceived in a broad sense It includes three layers that require philosophical attention 1 the technological infrastructure 2 the Web and 3 cloud computing along with apps and mobile Internet The study focuses on the network of networks from the viewpoint of complexity both structural and dynamic In addition to the scientific side this volume considers the technological facet and the social dimension of the Internet as a novel design There is a clear contribution of the Internet to science first the very development of the network of networks requires the creation of new science second the Internet empowers scientific disciplines such as communication sciences and third the Internet has fostered a whole new emergent field of data and information After the opening chapter which offers a series of keys to the book there are nine chapters grouped into four parts I Configuration of the Internet and Its Future II Structural and Dynamic Complexity in the Design of the Internet III Internal and External Contributions of the Internet and IV The Internet and the Sciences Following this framework The Internet and Philosophy of Science will be of interest to scholars and advanced students working in philosophy of science philosophy of technology as well as science and technology studies

Comparable Corpora and Computer-assisted Translation Estelle Maryline Delpech, 2014-07-22

Computer assisted translation CAT has always used translation memories which require the translator to have a corpus of previous translations that the CAT software can use to generate bilingual lexicons This can be problematic when the translator does not have such a corpus for instance when the text belongs to an emerging field To solve this issue CAT research has looked into the leveraging of comparable corpora i e a set of texts in two or more languages which deal with the same topic but are not translations of one another This work had two primary objectives The first is to assess the input of lexicons extracted from comparable corpora in the context of a specialized human translation task The second objective is to identify bilingual lexicon extraction methods which best match the translators needs determining the current limits of these techniques and suggesting improvements The author focuses in particular on the identification of fertile translations the management of multiple morphological structures and the ranking of candidate translations The experiments are carried out on two language pairs English French and English German and on specialized texts dealing with breast cancer This research puts significant emphasis on applicability methodological choices are guided by the needs of the final users This book is organized in two parts the first part presents the applicative and scientific context of the research and the second part is given over to efforts to improve compositional translation The research work presented in this book received the PhD Thesis award 2014 from the French association for natural language processing ATALA

Theory Development in the Information Sciences Diane H. Sonnenwald, 2016-03-08

Emerging as a discipline in the first half of the twentieth century the information sciences study how people groups organizations and governments create share disseminate manage search access evaluate and protect information as well as how different technologies and policies can facilitate and constrain these activities Given the broad span of the information sciences it is perhaps not surprising that there is no consensus regarding its underlying theory the purposes of it the types of it or how one goes about developing new theories to talk about new research questions Diane H Sonnenwald and the contributors to this volume seek to shed light on these issues by sharing reflections on the theory development process These reflections are not meant to revolve around data collection and analysis rather they focus on the struggles challenges successes and excitement of developing theories The particular theories that the contributors explore in their essays range widely from theories of literacy and reading to theories of design and digital search Several chapters engage with theories of the behavior of individuals and groups some deal with processes of evaluation others reflect on questions of design and the rest treat cultural and scientific heritage The ultimate goal Sonnenwald writes in her introduction is to encourage inspire and assist individuals striving to develop and or teach theory development The Literature Review Lawrence A.
