The National Churches of England, Ireland, and Scotland 1801-46 Stewart J. Brown, 2001-12-06 In 1801 the United Kingdom was a semi confessional State and the national established Churches of England Ireland and Scotland were vital to the constitution They expressed the religious conscience of the State and served as guardians of the faith Through their parish structures they provided religious and moral instruction and rituals for common living This book explores the struggle to strengthen the influence of the national Churches in the first half of the nineteenth century For many the national Churches would help form the United Kingdom into a single Protestant nation state with shared beliefs values and a sense of national mission Between 1801 and 1825 the State invested heavily in the national Churches But during the 1830s the growth of Catholic nationalism in Ireland and the emergence of liberalism in Britain thwarted the efforts to unify the nation around the established Churches Within the national Churches themselves moreover voices began calling for independence from the State connection leading to the Oxford Movement in England and the Disruption of the Church of Scotland

An Earnest Appeal to the Free Church of Scotland on the Subject of Its Economics Thomas Chalmers,1847 The Board of Publication believe that they are performing an important service for the Presbyterian Church in re publishing this pamphlet The topics Dr Chalmers here discusses with his characteristic ability and energy are mutatis mutandis of no less moment to our Church than they are to the Free Church of Scotland This will be sufficiently evident to every candid reader of the able and interesting Introduction prefixed to this edition pg 3
