Scratch Scratch Who Was That:

Scratch, Scratch! Richard Powell, 2005      Old Man Scratch Rio Youers, Johnny Gregson moved to the country to enjoy the quiet of his twilight years but it seems he's got two problems. The first is the roadkill. His neighbour Hill Scratch Clayton is the second. Scratch is a hard edged old man and a creature of habit. He mows his lawn at first light every morning and the sound of the John Deere's engine always wakes Johnny and his wife from their brittle sleep. Come winter the ride on mower is replaced by Scratch's snowblower. Johnny tries to reason with him but Scratch is set in his ways. There is no compassion in his soul. After Johnny's world is turned upside down he is compelled to take drastic action. He thinks he knows a way to silence Scratch forever. For six years he has been scraping dead animals from his driveway and tossing them to the side of the road and for six years they have disappeared within a day or two. He often asks himself what happens to the roadkill. Just where does it go? Old Man Scratch is a revenge story that is often touching, often humorous but always bound by the unknown, the inexplicable fear of what man is capable of and the darkness of his heart.

A Dictionary of Sexual Language and Imagery in Shakespearean and Stuart Literature Gordon Williams, 2001-09-13. Providing an alphabetical listing of sexual language and locution in 16th and 17th century English, this book draws especially on the more immediate literary modes: the theatre, broadside ballads, newsbooks and pamphlets. The aim is to assist the reader of Shakespearean and Stuart literature to identify metaphors and elucidate meanings and more broadly to chart through illustrative quotation shifting and recurrent linguistic patterns. Linguistic habit is closely bound up with the ideas and assumptions of a period and the figurative language of sexuality across this period is highly illuminating of socio-cultural change as well as linguistic development. Thus the entries offer as much to those concerned with social history and the history of ideas as to the reader of Shakespeare or Dryden.
