Beaty, Linda Pratt, 2003 For introductory courses in Early Childhood literacy To answer the question of what reading and writing activities are best for young children a well-known early childhood author has joined forces with a literacy expert to explore the development of literacy in the preschool environment and its ongoing support through kindergarten The results is a pragmatic research-based text whose paradigm shift focuses future teachers on the use of cultural characters from picture books as the keys to an entire curriculum of literacy activities Based on the latest theories of naturally emergent literacy this text examines ways to create a literacy-friendly learning environment using music and art as natural languages and even strengthening finger muscles for writing through other hands-on activities Experiencing Environment and

Place through Children's Literature Amy Cutter-Mackenzie, Phillip Payne, Alan Reid, 2014-06-11 Recent scholarship on children's literature displays a wide variety of interests in classic and contemporary children's books. While environmental and ecological concerns have led to an interest in ecocriticism, as yet there is little on the significance of the ecological imagination and experience to both the authors and readers young and old of these texts. This edited collection brings together a set of original international research-based chapters to explore the role of children's literature in learning about environments and places with a focus on how children's literature may inform and enrich our imagination, experiences, and responses to environmental challenges and injustice. Contributions from Australia, Canada, USA, and UK explore the diverse ways in which children's literature can provide what are arguably some of the first and possibly most formative engagements that some children might have with nature. Chapters examine classic and new storybooks, mythic tales, and image-based and/or written texts read at home, in school, and in the field. Contributors focus on exploring how children's literature mediates and informs our imagination and understandings of diverse environments and places and how it might open our eyes and lives to other presences, understandings, and priorities through stories, their telling and re-telling, and their analysis. This book was originally published as a special issue of Environmental Education Research. Teaching Children Mathematics, 1995

Panoramas, 1989 The Joy of Excellence Margaret Parker, 1975
