The Book of Esther and the Typology of Female Transfiguration in American Literature Ariel Clark Silver, 2017-11-30 The enduring search for female salvation in American literature is first expressed through typology an interpretive framework that pairs type with antitype historical scriptural promise with future spiritual fulfillment When Cotton Mather invokes the typos of Esther in Ornaments of the Daughters of Zion a Puritan conduct book he offers a female type of divine wisdom authority and force In the biblical Book of Esther Esther acts as a female type of wisdom and redemption but her story also engages the larger history of Hebrew salvation In nineteenth century America Margaret Fuller seeks to extend the spiritual claims once made by Mather and establish the role of the divine female in the salvation of American culture and society Fuller supplants the type of male sacrifice with a type of female transfiguration in works such as Woman in the Nineteenth Century Nathaniel Hawthorne then transforms these iconoclastic ideals into literary life by engaging the multi faceted figure of Esther as a typos of female redemption and salvation in Legends of the Province House The Scarlet Letter The Blithedale Romance and The Marble Faun Through his female characters Esther Dudley Hester Prynne Zenobia and Miriam he seeks to fulfill the divine destiny of the American woman Hawthorne discovers however that female redemption is followed by revenge as Esther turns from saving her people to ensuring an end to their oppression When Henry Adams later revives Esther Dudley in his novel Esther he rejects male redemption for the American woman In Democracy Esther Mont Saint Michel and The Education of Henry Adams Adams envisions an independent eternal woman who can rival the political scientific artistic and theological power of men The movement from male to female salvation is achieved when the terms of female redemption are transformed and the American woman is established as her own source of divine wisdom power retribution and force The typology of female transfiguration in America is fulfilled by Fuller Hawthorne and Adams through the promise extended by the type of Esther

Telling Women's Lives Judy Long, 1999-05 For centuries the great man format and masculine discourse of biography and autobiography have eclipsed women If we accept this history we remain ignorant of Lady Sarashina a Japanese woman of the Heian period whose book survives from the 11th century We overlook Margaret Cavendish and Dame Julian two early English autobiographers And we fail to consider sufficiently slave narratives oral histories or lesbian coming out stories Telling Women's Lives assesses existing traditions of autobiography and biography in search of a method capable of conveying the distinctive content of women's lives while retaining the tenor of feminine subjectivity Drawing on feminist research methodologies of the past two decades as well as anthropology and sociology Long paves the way for the formulation of an emergent feminist methodology for telling women's lives This highly original study seeks to revise and recreate the genre so as to accommodate a feminine discourse narrator reader and subject The messiness of women's lives the daily work and detail that men have programmatically excluded acquires new meaning as Long develops here an innovative theory of sociobiography

Aren't You BoJack Horseman? Harriet E.H. Earle, 2024-01-04 When the final episode of BoJack Horseman aired on Netflix in 2020 it was to massive critical and popular acclaim Across six seasons viewers followed the exploits of a washed up sitcom actor and his wacky collection of friends set against the fading glitz of Hollywood and played out through a distinct cast of both human and anthropomorphic characters Before the series even concluded it was clear that it would be the topic of research and discussion long beyond its relatively short run This collection brings together essays about the ways this series handles complex and highly nuanced topics within three main themes mental health masculinity and the perils of celebrity With contributions from researchers across a broad range of fields these essays offer a variety of perspectives on these themes how they are represented within the show and the ways that both characters and viewers engage with them

From Subjection to Survival Molly J. Freitas,2022-12-23 From Subjection to Survival is a work of feminist scholarship that works at the intersection of literature and art history the written and the visual By examining six important and diverse multiethnic American women writers of the twentieth century Kate Chopin Anzia Yezierska Edith Wharton Zitkala a Nella Larsen and Helena Mar a Viramontes From Subjection to Survival establishes a genealogy of how women writers claim the power and possibility of visual art to make sense of their experiences These writers write about women and feature female protagonists who engage with art as painters writers muses or icons in the texts themselves The texts are written visually to expose the fundamental substantiation of gender in art and the unavoidable aestheticization of women in daily life As every text in this book makes clear women can claim substantial power through art Yet aestheticization is not always positive As a consequence of such negative possibilities the artistic self referentiality of all of the texts in From Subjection to Survival exposes a negotiated course between subjectivity and objectness which women experience when engaging with art From Subjection to Survival studies this negotiated course to lay bare the difficult path of women's artistic and aesthetic experience but ultimately to claim the power and the possibility of the visual arts for women

Taking Liberties Amy B. Aronson,2002-10-30 Unlike its British forebears the early American magazine or periodical miscellany functioned in culture as a forum driven by manifold contributions and perpetuated by reader response Arising in colonial Philadelphia America's more democratic magazine sustained a range of conflicting ideas norms and beliefs indeed it promoted their very exchange It invited and embraced competing voices particularly during the first 75 years of the Republic In this first ever account of the early American magazine as a distinct form Amy Beth Aronson reveals how such participatory dynamics and public visibility offered special advantages to women especially to those with sufficient education access and financial means for whom ladies magazines offered unusual opportunities for self expression collective discussion and cultural response Moreover the genre opened and sustained dialogue among contributors whose competing voices played off each other provoking rebuttal and revision by subsequent contributors and noncontributing readers This free play of discourse positioned women's words in a uniquely productive way offering a kind of community of women readers who together wrote and revised magazine content and collectively negotiated and authorized new language for a new public's use

at the Edge of Literature Myra Jehlen, 2002-06 Myra Jehlen's aim in these essays is to read for what she calls the edge of literature the point at which writing seems unable to say more which is also for Jehlen the threshold of the real It is here she argues that the central paradoxes of the American project become clear self reliance and responsibility universal equality and the pursuit of empire writing from the heart and representing shared values and ideas Developing these paradoxes to their utmost tension American writers often produce penetrating critiques of American society without puncturing its basic myths For instance Mark Twain's Pudd'n head Wilson begins as a slashing satire of racism only to conclude by demonstrating that even an invisible portion of black blood can make a man a murderer Throughout these essays Jehlen demonstrates the crucial role that the process of writing itself plays in unfolding these paradoxes whether in the form of novels by Harriet Beecher Stowe and Virginia Woolf the histories of Captain John Smith or even a work of architecture such as the Guggenheim museum in Bilbao

Ladies' Greek Yopie Prins, 2017-05-09 In Ladies' Greek Yopie Prins illuminates a culture of female classical literacy that emerged in the second half of the nineteenth century during the formation of women's colleges on both sides of the Atlantic. Why did Victorian women of letters desire to learn ancient Greek, a dead language written in a strange alphabet and no longer spoken? In the words of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, they wrote some Greek upon the margin, lady's Greek without the accents. Yet in the margins of classical scholarship, they discovered other ways of knowing and not knowing Greek. Mediating between professional philology and the popularization of classics, these passionate amateurs became an important medium for classical transmission. Combining archival research on the entry of women into Greek studies in Victorian England and America with a literary interest in their translations of Greek tragedy, Prins demonstrates how women turned to this genre to perform a passion for ancient Greek full of eros and pathos. She focuses on five tragedies: Agamemnon, Prometheus Bound, Electra, Hippolytus, and The Bacchae, to analyze a wide range of translational practices by women and to explore the ongoing legacy of Ladies' Greek. Key figures in this story include Barrett Browning and Virginia Woolf, Janet Case and Jane Harrison, Edith Hamilton and Eva Palmer, and Mary F. Robinson and H. D. The book also features numerous illustrations, including photographs of early performances of Greek tragedy at women's colleges. The first comparative study of Anglo-American Hellenism, Ladies' Greek opens up new perspectives in transatlantic Victorian studies and the study of classical reception, translation, and gender.

Political Prayer in Nineteenth-Century American Literature Amy Dunham Strand, 2024-09-30 Political Prayer in Nineteenth-Century American Literature explores how American women writers such as Catharine Maria Sedgwick, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Rebecca Harding Davis, and Emily Dickinson translated petitioning, a political form for redress of grievances with religious resonance, or what Strand calls political prayer, in their literary works. At a time when petitioning was historically transforming governments, mobilizing masses, and democratizing North America, these White women writers wrote literary petitions to advocate for others in social justice causes such as antiremoval, antislavery, and labor reform to transform American literature and culture and to articulate an ambivalent political agency. Political Prayer in Nineteenth-Century American Literature introduces historic petitioning into literary study as an overlooked but important new lens for reading nineteenth-century fiction and poetry. Understanding petitions in these literary works and these literary works as petitions also helps us to understand women's political agency before their enfranchisement, to explain why scholars have long debated and inconsistently interpreted the works of well-anthologized women writers, and to see more clearly the multidimensional coexisting and often competing religious and political aspects of their writings.

Woman's Fiction Nina Baym, 1993
This reissue of the pioneering and standard book on antebellum women's domestic novels contains a new introduction situating the book in the context of important recent developments in the study of women's writing. Nina Baym considers 130 novels by 48 women, focusing on the works of a dozen especially productive and successful writers. Woman's Fiction is a major work in nineteenth-century literature, reexamining changes in the literary canon and the meaning of sentimentalism while responding to current critical discussions of the body in literary texts.
