Bartlett,2015-08-26 Primatologists

have long viewed small fruiting trees like figs as the reason for gibbons territorial and monogamous behavior. However, at Khao Yai National Park in Thailand where gibbons are prevalent, figs are one of the largest trees in the forest. In this long-term field study, Bartlett takes up this apparent contradiction and follows gibbons as their major food sources wax and wane over time. This is an important reference on gibbons and the study of small apes which provides a thorough, expansive coverage of the relationship between fruit abundance and diet range use and intergroup interactions in Gibbon apes. The Gibbons of Khao Yai: Seasonal Variation in Behavior and Ecology provides an essential resource for students conducting research in this field.

Muddy Boots Liza Gardner Walsh, 2015-06-20. No child can walk through a puddle of mud without a gigantic smile, and while the stuff might be the spring-time bane of grownups, children just love mud. Muddy Boots targets kids and families who value outdoor exploration and grandparents who long for their grandchildren to have the same unfettered time in nature as they did. The book features a wide range of hands-on activities for kids including mud play, forts, animal tracking, and forest wisdom, foraging insects and worms, bird watching and bird feeding, and many small things for kids to make. Although not primarily about mud, the activities do encourage all hands to get dirty as they explore the world around them.

The Capped Langur in Bangladesh Craig Britton Stanford, 1991-01-01. This monograph presents a detailed report on the social behaviour and ecology of a previously little-known species, the capped langur (Presbytis pileata). The author observed capped langurs at Madhupur National Park in Bangladesh where they live in small one-male groups. This account of his 15-month field study focuses on the relationships among one-male groups and the influence of ecology and seasonal variation in diet upon social behaviour patterns and aspects of intra-group and intergroup behaviour which are then used to test predictions of traditional ecological models of primate social systems. Features of the capped langur's behaviour and ecology that differ from previously studied colobine monkeys are also described in detail.

Under the Greenwood Tree Tracy E. K'Meyer, 2024-02-06. In the summer of 1960, director C. Douglas Ramey took his Carriage House Players theater company down the street from their Old Louisville venue to Central Park where the actors performed scenes from the Shakespeare classic Much Ado About Nothing. Buoyed by the enthusiastic audience response, Ramey's company returned to the park the next year for the first full season of the Kentucky Shakespeare Festival. More than sixty years later, Kentucky Shakespeare is now the oldest free, non-ticketed Shakespeare in the Park festival in the country. To commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of the festival in spring 2020, Kentucky Shakespeare cooperated with students in the University of Louisville's Department of History to record twenty entertaining and enlightening oral interviews with longtime members of the company. In Under the Greenwood Tree, author Tracy K. Meyer captures the history of Kentucky Shakespeare in a series of carefully selected and edited transcripts of these interviews. In these pages, past and present cast and crew share their memories of the company's history, performances in the park, and the positive impact of its many outreach programs from its inception in the 1960s to its slump in the early 2000s and on to its recent renaissance. An illuminating record of the collaborative artistry that brings Shakespeare's works to life Under the Greenwood Tree offers readers a peek behind the curtain at the group's steadfast stewardship of the most important literature in the English language

THE REVOLUTIONARY IN THE SHADOW OF THE OLEUM TREE AKREM ERBAKAN AHMET SUAT DÜZGÜN,2024-09-04 The first days of October The sun rising over the brown tiled houses that looked like they had been stacked on top of each other and then toppled over was like a lethargic servant waking people up reluctantly for a new day as if The sunlight touching the roofs of the houses now reveals all the flaws The day is afraid of the night and the night is afraid of the day because it does not last long and they constantly reveal each other's secrets These days in in is almost non-existent Not as a piece of land of course but with the people who lived there leaving it leaving it abandoned What a huge pile of rubble is left now The remaining large area is almost skyscraper style housing estates as far as the eye can see Despite such a large construction site there is no sign of life My heart truly aches Would you like to hear from me about this neighborhood where thousands of people live but there is no sound in in and silence are words from two different worlds that cannot come together So let's start from the beginning
