Kevin Rowe contribute a spectrum of voices from evangelical, charismatic, liberal and Anglo-Catholic perspectives. All contributors unite around the importance of seeking church growth provided this is situated within a nuanced theological framework. This book offers a critique of decline theology which has been influential amongst theologians and churches and which assumes church growth is impossible and/or unnecessary. The contributors provide rich resources from scripture, doctrine and tradition to underpin action to promote church growth and to stimulate further theological reflection on the subject. The Archbishop of Canterbury provides the Foreword.

Political Competition, Innovation and Growth Peter Bernholz, Manfred E. Streit, Roland Vaubel, 2012-12-06

This volume confronts an important historical hypothesis with empirical evidence from selected periods of history. The hypothesis in question states that competition among political and legal organisations in developing rules has been a crucial condition for liberty, innovation and growth in the history of mankind. It is due to Immanuel Kant, Edward Gibbon and Max Weber and has been revived and further developed by Nobel Laureate Douglass C. North who contributes the first chapter. The volume brings together political economists, historians and legal scholars to discuss the role of political competition in the rise and decline of nations both in theory and in a large number of case studies.

Replications Whitney Davis, 2010-11-01

The twelve interdisciplinary essays collected here explore what Whitney Davis calls replication in archaeology, art history and psychoanalysis: the sequential production of similar artifacts or images substitutable for one another in specific contexts of use. Davis suggests that while archaeology deals with the physics of replication, its material conditions and constraints, psychoanalysis deals with the psychics of replication, its mental conditions and constraints. Because art history is equally interested in the material properties and in the personal and cultural meaning of artifacts and images, it can mediate the interests of archaeology and psychoanalysis. Thus Replications explores not only the differences between but also the common ground shared by archaeology, art history and psychoanalysis, focusing for example on their mutual interest in the style of artifacts or image making, their need to treat the nonintentional or nonmeaningful element in production and their models of the subjective and social transmission of replications in the life history of persons and communities. Replications is an original contribution to an emerging field of study in domains as diverse as philosophy, cognitive science, connoisseurship and cultural studies: the intersection of the material and the meaningful in the human production of artifacts. Davis develops formal models for and theories about this relationship, exploring the ideas of a number of philosophers, historians and critics and presenting his own distinctive conceptual analysis.
