National Civic Review No 3 Fall 2005:

National Civic Review, Volume 97, Number 3, Fall 2008 Michael McGrath, 2008-10-28 Sustaining the League of Women Voters in America Maria Hoyt Cashin, 2013-03-07 A look at the decline of civic engagement and how nonpartisan organizations like the League of Women Voters can help save and promote democracy Throughout our history civic associations have enabled democracy through citizen training education and responsible advocacy But Americans have increasingly withdrawn from such civic activity and most associations that remain lack public accountability local presence and active membership In the absence of other engagement vehicles a fundamental requirement for viable American democratic culture is lacking To consider whether democracy and associations can still be positively linked Maria Hoyt Cashin considers lessons drawn from the League of Women Voters Worldwide few associations have shown the durability success or democratic impact of the League over its long history Yet its numbers are gradually declining Forecasting the League's uncertain future Cashin suggests it may be time to give such civic associations a public boost Deftly combining contemporary political theory with empirical analysis Cashin's work reminds us that good models of democratic association such as the League of Women Voters can reconnect our practices and our principles Emily Howden Hoechst Adjunct Professor Department of Government Georgetown University Cashin makes excellent use of both theory and practice to argue persuasively that civic associations are necessary if democracy is to thrive Thomas M Kerch Adjunct Professor Department of Government and Graduate Liberal Studies Program Georgetown University A welcome story and needed message Molly Cashin reminds us nonpartisan civic activism is still possible Numbers count but so do values and the League is a sterling example Charles Yonkers Adjunct Professor Graduate Liberal Studies Program Georgetown University

The Future of Democracy Peter Levine, 2015-01-06 We need young people to be civically engaged in order to define and address public problems Their participation is important for democracy for institutions such as schools and for young people themselves who are more likely to succeed in life if they are engaged in their communities In The Future of Democracy Peter Levine scholar and practitioner sounds the alarm in recent years young Americans have become dangerously less engaged They are tolerant patriotic and idealistic and some have invented such novel and impressive forms of civic engagement as blogs boycott movements and transnational youth networks But most lack the skills and opportunities they need to participate in politics or address public problems Levine's timely manifesto clearly explains the causes symptoms and repercussions of this damaging trend and most importantly the means whereby America can confront and reverse it Levine demonstrates how to change young people's civic attitudes skills and knowledge and equally importantly to reform our institutions so that civic engagement is rewarding and effective We must both prepare citizens for politics and improve politics for citizens

Toward Sustainable Communities Daniel A. Mazmanian, Michael E. Kraft, 2009 A new edition with new and updated case studies and analysis that demonstrate the trend in U.S. environmental policy toward sustainability at local and regional levels

Citizens Adrift Paul Howe, 2011-07-01 Many political observers struck by low turnout rates among young voters are pessimistic about the future of democracy in Canada and other Western nations Citizens in general are disengaged in politics and young people in particular are said to be adrift in a sea of apathy Others have questioned this bleak assessment arguing that youth engagement has shifted to newer forms of political and community involvement In Citizens Adrift Paul Howe examines past and present patterns of political and civic engagement and concludes that many young Canadians are in fact detached from the political realm Two trends underlie his findings waning political knowledge and attentiveness and generational changes in the norms and values that help sustain social integration Putting young people back on the path towards engaged citizenship therefore requires a holistic approach one which acknowledges that democratic engagement extends beyond the realm of formal politics
