National Transport Models Recent Developments And Prospects:

National Transport Models Lars Lundqvist, Lars-Göran Mattsson, 2013-11-11 National and European transport models become increasingly important. The broadening of national transport policy from strategic infrastructure investments to infrastructure management strengthens the need for advanced and more policy sensitive tools of analysis. The increase of interregional and international mobility requires forecasting tools that go beyond the urban or regional level. The competition for national infrastructure investments among regions and for Trans European investments among nations has to be resolved by decisions and decision support systems at the appropriate spatial level. Environmental impacts transcend regional and national boundaries and transport policies affecting these environmental impacts involve all spatial levels. This volume presents the state of the art and prospects of a sample of the most advanced national and European transport models within a comparative framework.

European Regional Growth Bernard Fingleton, 2013-06-29 Looking into the future and trying to visualize long run regional disparities is difficult. There is no agreed single theory to guide our model building although some insight can be gained from analysis of the past and by looking at the different theoretical positions to see if there is any agreement at least in terms of outcome if not in terms of mechanism. This is what is attempted in this book which brings together specialists with a common interest in European regional growth and in applying quantitative analytical and simulation techniques in order to provide different perspectives on the topic. Many of the chapters in the book employ the methods of spatial econometrics. Spatial econometrics is a suite of statistical and econometric tools dedicated to the analysis of spatial data in other words data that is set within the context of socio economic theories and which can be represented most informatively in mapped form. These methods have emerged over the last half century from a series of influential papers and books in the fields of regional science, spatial statistics and quantitative geography and are ripe for serious application in the context of the EU's development. In particular they provide the means by which to analyze spatially indexed data where the time dimension is essentially suppressed because for instance the variables of interest are not available or are of questionable accuracy which is often the case when one is interested in regional rather than national variations across a number of countries.

Planning Support Systems in Practice Stan Geertman, John Stillwell, 2012-11-02 Planning Support Systems Technologies that are Driving Planning Michael Batty Centre for Advanced Spatial Analysis CASA University College London 19 Torrington Place London WC1E 6BT United Kingdom I had always thought the term Planning Support Systems abbreviated to PSS had been coined by the father of land use modelling Britton Harris in his article Beyond Geographic Information Systems computers and the planning professional published in the Journal of the American Planning Association in 1989. Harris 1989. Until I asked him that is. In a response to a paper he gave to the Urban and Regional Information Systems Association URISA in the summer of 1987 he told me that someone in the audience who he cannot quite remember actually coined the term referring to planning support systems as that constellation of digital techniques such as GIS which were emerging to support the planning process In fact the predecessor term decision support systems DSS from which this unknown originator obviously defined PSS by analogy was coined as far back as the late 1970s in the management literature for a loose assemblage of techniques usually computer based which aided management decisions The term slowly entered the geographical lexicon as spatial decision support systems SDSS and this is probably first attributable to Lew Hopkins and Mark Armstrong who used it in a paper published in AutoCarto 7 in 1985 Hopkins and Armstrong 1985

History of Regional Science and the Regional Science Association International Walter Isard, 2003-06-18 A well written and exciting historical account of the way in which regional science and the formation of the society associated with the field Regional Science Association International developed It starts with the rise of Hitler the advent of the Keynesian Revolution the intense mathematization of economics and relates how an individual's creative thinking effectively combated the strong resistance of conventional social sciences The text has been written by the founder of the Regional Science Association and current President of the North American Regional Science Council It is of interest to regional scientists economists sociologists urban and regional planners geographers and transportation researchers

Spatial Autocorrelation and Spatial Filtering Daniel A. Griffith, 2013-03-19 Exploiting the old maxim that a picture is worth a thousand words scientific visualization may be defined as the transformation of numerical scientific data into informative graphical displays It introduces a nonverbal model into subdisciplines that hitherto employed mostly or only mathematical or verbal conceptual models The focus of this monograph is on how scientific visualization can help revolutionize the manner in which the tendencies for dissimilar numerical values to cluster together in location on a map are explored and analyzed affording spatial data analyses that are better understood presented and used In doing so the concept known as spatial autocorrelation which characterizes these tendencies and is one of the key features of georeferenced data or data tagged to the earth's surface is further demystified This self correlation arises from relative locations in geographic space

Handbook of Research Methods and Applications in Transport Economics and Policy Chris Nash, 2015-09-25 Transport economics and policy analysis is a field which has seen major advances in methodology in recent decades covering issues such as estimating cost functions modelling of demand dealing with externalities examining industry ownership and structure pricing and investment decisions and measuring economic impacts This Handbook contains reviews of all these methods with an emphasis on practical applications commissioned from an international cast of experts in the field

Innovation Clusters and Interregional Competition Johannes Bröcker, Dirk Dohse, Rüdiger Soltwedel, 2012-11-02 Empirical evidence about cluster building the emphasis of new growth theory on innovation the recent interest in economic geography and the high pressure on politicians to establish favourable conditions for attracting dynamic industries have triggered a wave of research during the last decade trying to understand more deeply why how and where clusters emerge and what factors determine their respective success or failure In this volume the world's leading experts contribute to our understanding of regional innovation cluster formation and the factors influencing regional productivity and innovative performance It provides a timely and comprehensive picture on innovation location networks and clusters as important means in an environment of intensifying interregional competition Sustainable Development and Planning V C. A. Brebbia,Élias Beriatos,2011

This book contains the proceedings of the latest in a series of biennial conferences on the topic of sustainable regional development that began in 2003 Organised by the Wessex Institute of Technology the conference series provides a common forum for all scientists specialising in the range of subjects included within sustainable development and planning It has become apparent that planners environmentalists architects engineers policy makers and economists have to work together in order to ensure that planning and development can meet our present needs without compromising the ability of future generations The topics covered by the papers included in the book include City planning Regional planning Social and political issues Sustainability in the built environment Rural developments Cultural heritage Transportation Ecosystems analysis protection and remediation Environmental management Environmental impact assessment Indicators of sustainability Sustainable solutions in developing countries Sustainable tourism Waste management Flood risk management Resources management and Industrial developments Road Pricing, the Economy and the Environment C.

Jensen-Butler,Brigitte Sloth,Morten M. Larsen,Bjarne Madsen,Otto A. Nielsen,2008-01-24 Economic growth and globalisation create traffic growth leading to congestion which again increases travel times and costs Road pricing is an instrument that may efficiently reduce the negative impacts This volume is a collection of research papers on the use of road pricing The focus is on passenger transport and the papers cover a wide range of approaches including theoretical modelling and empirical studies of road pricing experience from different cities Transport Models in Urban Planning Practices

Marco te Brömmelstroet,Luca Bertolini,2016-04-08 This book explores how transportation models can play a role in a changing transport planning and policy making context Most models are rooted in decades of development work and are geared to offer value free academic and explicit knowledge to transport planning experts However planning practice has changed dramatically over the years resulting in a less technical rational view on the use of such knowledge especially so in early strategy making phases More and more complex policy goals integration of a wide area of other policy domains a wider ever changing and much more mixed group of planning participants and much more focus on wicked problems The book maps how this influences the effectiveness of transport modelling exercises and explores several state of the art implementations This book was published as a special issue of Transport Reviews
