British Foreign Policy in an Age of Revolutions, 1783-1793 Jeremy Black, 1994-04-14 In 1783 Britain had lost America and was unstable domestically By 1793 it had regained its position as the leading global power Three successive crises are examined during the intervening years in an effort to throw light on the British state in an Age of Revolutions and a crucial period of international development

The Shaping of French National Identity Matthew D'Auria, 2020-12-03 Casts new light on of the official French nineteenth century narrative by examining how historians and philosophers conceived of the country's past

War and the Rise of the State Bruce D. Porter, 2002-02-01 States make war but war also makes states As Publishers Weekly notes Porter a political scientist at Brigham Young University demonstrates that wars have been catalysts for increasing the size and power of Western governments since the Renaissance The state's monopoly of effective violence has diminished not only individual rights and liberties but also the ability of local communities and private associates to challenge the centralization of authority Porter's originality lies in his thesis that war breaking down barriers of class gender ethnicity and ideology also contributes to meritocracy mobility and above all democratization Porter also posits the emergence of the Scientific Warfare State a political system in which advanced technology would render obsolete mass participation in war This provocative study merits wide circulation and serious discussion

Revolutionary

Europe Gavin Murray-Miller, 2020-02-06 CHOICE Outstanding Academic Title 2021 Revolutionary Europe is an original examination of radical political movements during Europe's long 19th century. It employs both national and transnational contexts incorporating new debates in Atlantic history, empire studies, and cultural history to give a comprehensive narrative of the period from 1775 to 1922. Rather than assessing revolution as a purely theoretical, socially driven force or a structural phenomenon, the book presents revolution as a process of community building and cultural identification born from instances of acute social and political crisis. Taking into account various moments of political upheaval during the 19th century, including the French, Russian, and 1848 revolutions, it explores the ways in which political actors attempted to construct new definitions of sovereignty and social unity in a period characterized by vast social, economic, and governmental change. In a wide-ranging text that covers Britain and much of continental Europe in detail, as well as reaching out to the Americas and Atlantic and Mediterranean Worlds, Gavin Murray-Miller provides an authoritative transnational study of revolution in the 19th-century age of high nationalism. After Chartism Margot C. Finn, 1993 Working and middle class radical politics in England from the fall of Chartism in 1848 to the 1870s
