FIRST NATIONS HEALTH AND WELLBEING – THE LOWITJA JOURNAL

First Nations Health and Wellbeing - The Lowitja Journal is the official journal of the Lowitja Institute, Australia's first community-controlled research institute. This important new journal aims to uphold First Nations rights to sovereignty and self-determination within research practice. It is a community-controlled, international, inter- and multi-disciplinary peer-reviewed online open access journal that is dedicated to expanding access to First Nations research.

We focus on primary research papers, systematic reviews, and informed short reports and community contributions on all aspects of the science, culture, philosophy and practice regarding health and wellbeing for First Nations communities.

We recognise that structured knowledge systems of First Nations Peoples, developed over millennia to underpin thriving and healthy communities, offer solutions to the survival and flourishing of our people. All papers must include substantive contributions by First Nations authors and will be peer reviewed by experts in the field of the submitted work.

The journal is guided by the National Health Leadership Forum but governed by the Lowitja Board. While we are based in Australia, our Editorial Board is international and we welcome papers from First Nations researchers from all over the world, reflecting our global perspective and reach.

We invite you to submit your next research article to this important new journal. Please visit our website for more information.

The International Medical Relief Corps in Wartime China, 1937-1945 Robert Mamlok, M.D., 2018-10-03 Both before and during World War II the Nazis restricted the rights of Jewish and communist doctors Some fought back first by fighting against Fascism in the Spanish Civil War and then by helping the Chinese in their struggle against Japan There were however two rival factions in China One favored Chiang Kai shek the nationalists and the other the communists and 27 foreign medical personnel were caught between them Amidst poverty war and corruption living conditions were poor and traveling was hazardous This book follows members of the Chinese Red Cross Medical Relief Corps through the war as they became enemy aliens and pursued their work despite the perils These doctors had a keen sense of public health needs and contributed to the recognition and management of infectious diseases and nutritional disorders all the while denouncing corruption inhumanity and inequality Social Determinants of Health, Fourth Edition Dennis Raphael, 2025-01-06 Now in its fourth edition Dennis Raphael's Social Determinants of Health offers the definitive Canadian discussion of the primary factors that influence the health of Canada's population This unique text on the social determinants of health contains contributions from top academics and high profile experts from across Canada Taking a public policy approach the contributors to this edited collection critically analyze the structural inequalities embedded in our society and the socio economic factors that affect health including income education employment housing food security gender and race This new edition includes recent statistics new developments in early childhood education and the implementation of Canada's national childcare system and new content on the social determinants of Indigenous Peoples health Particular attention is paid to how economic globalization and the acceptance of neoliberal governing ideology is shaping the health of Canadians The COVID 19 epidemic vividly illustrated the importance of the social determinants of health as sickness and death rates were strikingly higher among Canadians in groups already experiencing adverse living and working conditions and poorer health lower income Canadians recent immigrants of colour and those experiencing housing and food insecurity If anything positive is to come out of this experience it will be recognition that in the current post COVID 19 environment it is essential to understand the socio economic conditions that shape the health of individuals and communities Social Determinants of Health Fourth Edition is aimed at courses focusing on the social determinants of health at Canadian universities and colleges particularly those in health studies and nursing but also allied health sociology and human services International Mortality Statistics Michael Alderson,1981-06-18 Community Health Nursing Stephen Paul Holzemer,Marilyn B. Klainberg,2014 Written in an accessible user friendly and practical style this text provides a focused and highly engaging introduction to community health nursing It focuses on health care for people in their homes and where they live with an overriding emphasis on care of the client in the community and the business and politics of community health nursing This book is accompanied by a robust Companion Website full of online activities to enhance the student learning experiences

Decolonizing Data Jacqueline M. Quinless,2022-02-15 Decolonizing Data explores how ongoing structures of colonialization negatively impact the well being of Indigenous peoples and communities across Canada resulting in persistent health inequalities In addressing the social dimensions of health particularly as they affect Indigenous peoples and BIPOC communities Decolonizing Data asks Should these groups be given priority for future health policy considerations Decolonizing Data provides a deeper understanding of the social dimensions of health as applied to Indigenous peoples who have been historically underfunded in and excluded from health services programs and quality of care this inequality has most recently been seen during the COVID 19 pandemic Drawing on both western and Indigenous methodologies this unique scholarly contribution takes both a sociological perspective and the two eyed seeing approach to research methods By looking at the ways that everyday research practices contribute to the colonization of health outcomes for Indigenous peoples Decolonizing Data exposes the social dimensions of healthcare and offers a careful and respectful reflection on how to unsettle conversations about applied social research initiatives for our most vulnerable groups Oxford Textbook of Infectious Disease Control Andrew Cliff,Matthew Smallman-Raynor,2013-04-11 This text discusses the issues of geographical spread of human communicable diseases Split into six chapters it tackles surveillance quarantine vaccination and forecasting for disease control A wide selection of representative maps and diagrams are used to illustrate the ideas explored Aboriginal Canada Revisited Kerstin Knopf, 2008-09-13 Exploring a variety of topics including health politics education art literature media and film Aboriginal Canada Revisited draws a portrait of the current political and cultural position of Canada's Aboriginal peoples While lauding improvements made in the past decades the contributors draw attention to the systemic problems that continue to marginalize Aboriginal people within Canadian society From the Introduction This collection helps to highlight areas where the colonial legacy still takes its toll to acknowledge the manifold ways of Aboriginal cultural expression and to demonstrate where Aboriginal and non Aboriginal people are starting to find common ground Contributors include Aboriginal and non Aboriginal scholars from Europe and Canada including Marlene Atleo University of Manitoba Mansell Griffin Nisga'a Village of Gitwinksihlkw British Columbia Robert Harding University College of the Fraser Valley Tricia Logan University of Manitoba Steffi Retzlaff McMaster University Siobhán Smith University of British Columbia Barbara Walberg Confederation College Published in English

Mass Vaccination Mary Augusta Brazelton, 2019-10-15 Mass Vaccination comfortably establishes itself as the leading and indeed essential monograph on the history of vaccination in modern China a much needed contribution to the history of medicine that will undoubtedly become a textbook in our age of vaccine wars but which by far surpasses the historiographical needs of the moment by delivering a nuanced and systematic history of mass vaccination in the world's most populous and increasingly powerful country International Journal of Asian Studies While the eradication of smallpox has long been documented not many know the Chinese roots of this historic achievement In this revelatory study Mary Augusta Brazelton examines the PRC's public health campaigns of the 1950s to explain just how China managed to inoculate almost six hundred million people against this and other deadly diseases Mass Vaccination tells the story of the people materials and systems that built these campaigns exposing how by improving the nation's health the Chinese Communist Party quickly asserted itself in the daily lives of all citizens This crusade had deep roots in the Republic of China during the Second Sino Japanese War when researchers in China's southwest struggled to immunize as many people as possible both in urban and rural areas But its legacy was profound providing a means for the state to develop new forms of control and of engagement Brazelton considers the implications of vaccination policies for national governance from rural health care to Cold War era programs of medical diplomacy By embedding Chinese medical history within international currents she highlights how and why China became an exemplar of primary health care at a crucial moment in global health policy
