Understanding Indian Land
Cessions in the
Western United States
Requires a Knowledge of the Historical Context of the
Cessions

The Indian land cessions in the Western United States are a complex and often misunderstood topic. This map illustrates the various land cessions made by Native American tribes to the United States government between 1784 and 1972. The map is divided into several color-coded regions, each representing a different period of land cession. The legend on the left side of the map provides a key to these regions, showing the years of cession and the corresponding color. The map also includes a scale bar and a north arrow.
