An Assessment of Natural Hazards and Disasters in Canada David Etkin, C.E. Haque, Gregory R. Brooks, 2003-04-30 The problems and issues of natural hazards and disasters both globally and in Canada are becoming increasingly important since the costs of extreme natural events have been escalating and significant vulnerabilities exist in Canadian society Without thoughtful and effective mitigation these costs and human suffering are likely to continue to increase An assessment of knowledge research and practice in risk hazards and disasters fields is a fundamental step towards the goal of prevention and mitigation This book on natural hazards and disasters in Canada is the first comprehensive interdisciplinary publication on this subject and is the result of a national assessment on this topic A variety of papers from the physical and social sciences explores both the risks associated with these hazards and adaptive strategies that can be used to reduce those risks Audience This excellent collection of papers is intended for academics professionals and practitioners involved in hazard reduction activities who wish to obtain a better understanding of Canadian natural hazards

The Use of Historical Data in Natural Hazard Assessments Thomas Glade, Paola Albini, Félix Francés, 2013-03-09 Natural hazards such as earthquakes landslides floods volcanic eruptions tsunamis and hurricanes cause environmental economic as well as sociological problems worldwide In recent years greater availability of information and sensational media reports of natural hazard occurrence and in particular in terms of property damage or loss of life caused by these hazards resulted in an increase of hazard awareness at a societal level. This increase in public awareness has often been misconstrued as an indication that natural hazards have been occurring more frequently with higher magnitudes in recent years decades thus causing more damage than in the past. It is still under debate however to which extent recent increases in damage can be related to changing frequencies of natural processes or whether catastrophic events occur at similar rates as they always had. If the latter is the case the reason for a greater damage can be related to dramatic population growth over the last century with a substantial augmentation of population density in some regions. Indeed the implications are more severe in underdeveloped and developing countries where urbanisation has increasingly occurred in hazard prone areas such as coastal zones alluvial river plains and steep slopes thus causing an increase in the exposure to natural hazards. Some groups of society in wealthy countries accept higher risks in order to live directly on top of a cliff or on a steep slope to enjoy panoramic views of the landscape.

Mitigation of Natural Hazards and Disasters C. Emdad Haque, 2006-02-23 For these and other reasons the findings reported in this volume will be of large significance as future policy decisions are made in a wide variety of natural and social environments. Given the global impacts of climate change and world wide pattern of increasing losses from natural hazards we necessarily adopt an international perspective. The specific goals of the special issue are to a) encompass experiential aspects emphasizing current practice of mitigation and its associated measures and their results and b) explore primary or root causes of alarming shifts in human and economic costs of environmental extremes.

Geomorphology and Natural Hazards Timothy R. Davies, Oliver Korup, John J. Clague, 2021-03-30 Natural disasters are occasional intense events that disturb Earth's surface but their impact can be felt long after. Hazard events such as earthquakes volcanos drought and storms can trigger a catastrophic reshaping of the landscape through the erosion transport and deposition of different kinds of materials. Geomorphology and Natural Hazards: Understanding Landscape Change for Disaster Mitigation is a graduate level textbook that explores the natural hazards resulting from landscape change and shows how an Earth science perspective can inform hazard mitigation and disaster impact reduction. Volume highlights include Definitions of hazards risks and disasters Impact of different natural hazards on Earth surface processes Geomorphologic insights for hazard assessment and risk mitigation Models for predicting natural hazards How human activities have altered natural hazards Complementarity of geomorphology and engineering to manage threats Exploring Natural Hazards Darius Bartlett, Ramesh Singh, 2018-04-09 The Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015 2030 has identified four priority areas for Disaster Risk Reduction understanding disaster risk strengthening disaster risk governance to manage disaster risk investing in disaster risk reduction for resilience and enhancing disaster preparedness for effective response and to Build Back Better in recovery rehabilitation and reconstruction Although tremendous progress has been made in recent decades in understanding the workings of the Earth systems and in particular its impacts on and responses to human actions there remains a continuing and pressing need for knowledge that will allow society to simultaneously reduce exposure to global environmental hazards while also meeting economic development goals Exploring Natural Hazards A Case Study Approach contributes to the knowledge showcasing advanced practices for the monitoring of natural hazards Through each case study the book examines mainly hazards arising from processes within the hydrosphere and atmosphere triggered or exacerbated by inputs to and transfers of energy between environmental components It discusses the causes of these phenomena and ways in which improved policy making sometimes coupled with the application of appropriate modern technologies can help to reduce people's exposure to harm Discussing challenges lessons learned and recommendations this book provides a snapshot of issues related to tropical cyclones and typhoons desertification floods lightning as a hazard and the need for alert systems It is a valuable resource for practitioners and professionals alike for researchers students and others who work at the intersection between environmental hazards sustainable development and social justice Earth System Monitor, 1992 Natural Hazards Graham A. Tobin, 1997-03-28 Adopting an integrated approach to natural hazards that incorporates facets of both the physical and social sciences this text examines how different societies have responded to such extremes of nature The authors bring together the behavioural political psychological and economic approaches leading to increased comprehension of a range of natural hazards rather than a detailed analysis of particular events or hazard categories Coping with Natural Hazards Khadg Singh Valdiya, 2004 This book is a collection of twenty one papers presented during the symposium on Coping with Natural Hazards at University of Pune on 5 and 6 October 2001 This very successful symposium organised by the National Academy of Sciences outlined the strategies our country should adopt to be prepared to face hazards like earthquakes floods landslides avalanches cyclones droughts and desertification It contains papers by pre eminent scientists and leading lights like Professors M G K Menon P K Das D R Sikka and R K Bhandari and many others Each paper has been critically reviewed by at least two experts in their respective fields Annual Statistical Report United States.
