

13 SHŌGONKA

Material: Yellow dahlia, Japanese spiraea, dogwood, silver leaved form of viburnum, Japanese bamboo, canna, false-spiraea, common threewort, clematis
Container: Ceramic compote

The shōgonka is a floral form of the highest standing created from the ancient floral offerings to Buddha. In addition to its dignified composition and variety of color, its classic yet modern quality makes it suitable for all occasion and adapts itself well to modern architecture. The Buddhistic philosophy of the six great elements, composing all substances of the universe, namely earth, water, fire, wind, space and knowledge, has been applied to the composition of this arrangement form. The branches respectively stand for (1) space—vertical, (2) fire—curves and ascends, (3) wind—forms a half circle as if blown by the wind, (4) water—as if flowing downward, (5) earth—supports the fire (2), (6) and (7) knowledge—unify the branches and tighten the base of the arrangement.

1 Study the function of each branch in relation to the arrangement as a whole and arrange in the order of (1) through (7). The branch (5) (silver leaved form of viburnum) boldly reaches upwards, while the branch (2) (Japanese spiraea) is used very lightly.
