Historical Dictionary of Burkina Faso Lawrence Rupley, Lamissa Bangali, Boureima Diamitani, 2013-02-07 Burkina Faso known as Upper Volta until its independence from France in 1960 and locally called the land of the upright people is a medium sized land locked country with no less than six neighbors some of which periodically get into trouble which makes it reasonably strategic in some ways While it has not done as poorly as some other African states its economic has certainly not prospered and many Burkinabe go abroad to earn a living As for politics it is another case of stability without democracy even if there are periodic elections Still this is better than not even having stability This third edition of Historical Dictionary of Burkina Faso covers its history through a chronology an introductory essay maps appendixes and an extensive bibliography The dictionary section has over 1000 cross referenced entries on important personalities politics economy foreign relations religion and culture This book is an excellent access point for students researchers and anyone wanting to know more about Burkina Faso

Riverblindness in Africa Bruce Benton, 2020-12-01 The remarkable story of how a large public private partnership worked to control and defeat riverblindness a scourge which had devastated rural communities and impeded socioeconomic development throughout much of Sub Saharan Africa for generations Riverblindness onchocerciasis a pervasive neglected disease transmitted by the blackfly that causes horrific itching disfigurement and loss of vision is also known as lion s stare in reference to the fixed lifeless glare of the eyes blinded by the disease The disease has destroyed countless lives for generations particularly in Africa Its effects are so devastating that the areas where it is most common large expanses of land around rivers where the fly breeds end up abandoned as villages move farther and farther away to more arid environments in order to escape the fly biting and hence the disease. The disease devastates communities from multiple angles: a large portion of each stricken community's population is disabled, often permanently blind in the prime of life, placing a burden on the rest and communities' efforts to escape infection force them to move to areas where farming is less productive. To defeat riverblindness would not only release these communities from the heavy toll of the disease but would also open more fertile areas in Africa to be inhabited, thus alleviating extreme poverty. These were the goals of the World Bank led by then president Robert McNamara when launching a partnership to combat riverblindness more than forty five years ago. In this book, Bruce Benton tells the remarkable story of that partnership's success. An authoritative account of the launch and scale up of the effort, the book covers the transformation of the fight from a top down high tech operation to a grassroots drug treatment program covering all of endemic Africa. How Benton asks: did the effort become such a unique partnership of UN agencies, donors, NGOs, a major pharmaceutical company, universities, African governments and the stricken communities themselves? Highlighting the importance of disease control in alleviating absolute poverty and promoting development, Benton examines the key developments, individuals and notable qualities of the partnership in realizing success. He also extracts lessons from this particular story for addressing future challenges through partnership. Drawing on Benton's twenty years of experience managing the riverblindness program for the World Bank along with extensive research and interviews with 100 players in the program, Riverblindness in Africa is the first and only book of its kind. The story of the battle has an epic scale both in terms of geography and the vast number of people and organizations involved. It provides a template for a broad range of global health efforts and is an excellent example of evolving increasingly effective approaches to disease control and elimination.

Rural Settlement Structure And African Development Marilyn Silberfein, 2019-09-16 This volume is the result of a group of researchers applying their insights and experience to a common theme. All the authors are concerned with rural development in Africa and all have focused on the connection between the development process and the arrangement of people and their built environment in rural space. Both anthropologists and geographers have contributed to the dialogue on this subject and representatives of the two disciplines are included in this volume. The members of this group have never all been in the same place at the same time and so have utilized various electronic modes of communication to link their locations around the world. Two conferences were organized, however, among a subset of the whole in order to generate a group discussion. One of these meetings was a symposium on African rural development held at Temple University while a second was organized at the African Studies Association Meetings in Toronto. Both opportunities helped raise issues that found their way into individual chapters. The audience in each case further stimulated our thinking.

The Economics of Ecology, Exchange, and Adaptation Donald C. Wood, 2016-09-08 This book consists of three sections. The first concentrating on ecology further explores the theme of climate change. The second section focuses on exchange transactions and relations in a variety of situations and settings. Finally, papers in the third section share a concern with individual and group adaptations to certain conditions of life

Transforming Settlement in Southern Africa Chris de Wet, 2020-03-31 This volume examines the ways in which changing political and economic processes impact upon patterns of population movement and settlement It focuses on the southern African region as it has moved from the experiments of the early independence era through civil war and refugee flight into the current era characterised by globalization and the demise of apartheid Focused case studies from across the region deal with specific aspects of these transformations and their policy implications
