

FROM CONFLICT TO INTEGRATION: AN ANTHROPOLOGICAL STUDY ON THE PSYCHOLOGICAL AND BEHAVIORAL CHANGES OF MANCHU URBAN PLANNING AND NATIONAL INTEGRATION IN THE QING DYNASTY (1644-1911)

Chunxue Lu*

School of Humanities and New Media, Yangtze University, Jingzhou, 434021, China

Background: Ethnic integration is a complex human behavior and the result of national psychological protection mechanism. In the process of its occurrence, different nationalities have different national psychological characteristics, and it is easy to produce conflicts and contradictions in symbiosis and coexistence, which is also caused by national psychological differences. In the Chinese historical documents of the 16th and 17th centuries, a large number of historical facts about Manchu immigrants are reflected. After the establishment of Manchu feudal regime in the Qing Dynasty, Han and other ethnic minorities had a mentality of military guard. Therefore, large-scale military activities were carried out in the larger territory of the Qing Dynasty. On a smaller geographical spatial scale, Manchurians also established small ethnic cities isolated from other ethnic groups in the living space of Han cities. In the urban planning of Manchu and Qing people, they not only did not destroy the characteristics of local cultural buildings, but also innovated and improved them. They are less involved in regional emotional changes in contemporary psychology. Therefore, this paper will explore the changes of national emotional behavior behind the national integration of Manchu and Qing Dynasties.

Research Objects and Methods: This paper mainly adopts the traditional literature research method, searches the Chinese historical documents of the 16th and 17th centuries, and refers to the research results of modern scholars to find out the historical facts of Manchu immigrants, military activities and urban planning. Take these historical facts as the basic data of psychology and anthropology. The data are from literature analysis. The selection of Manchu cities fully refers to the city maps and exact written records recorded in historical documents. The motivation scale was also used. The theme of measuring motivation is the entrepreneurial motivation scale compiled by pan, which has 8 questions and adopts Likert's 5-point scoring method. Social support scale. The scale is adapted from the social support scale compiled by Ye Yuemei et al.

Results: Manchu, the main ethnic group in the Qing Dynasty, migrated from Northeast China to other regions today, which reflected the strong national psychological consciousness of Manchu and led to national isolation. The Qing Dynasty established 13 Manchu cities in or near Han cities. These ethnic cities are separated from Han cities by militarization, building walls or military facilities, which fully reflects the group psychological characteristics of Manchu's exclusion of Han. This shows that there is a specific positive correlation between national integration and regional emotional changes, which also enables researchers to study the emotional behavior changes behind future urban planning and national integration without considering the influence of public factors, and can independently explain the prediction results.

Conclusion: The history of Manchu urban planning is a historical phenomenon, and its essence is ethnic segregation. Behind the emergence of ethnic segregation is the group psychology of Manchu against other nationalities in the Qing Dynasty. Examining the history of Manchu planning from the perspective of psychology and anthropology can better understand the ethnic relations in the Qing Dynasty. Give full play to the concentration of relevant professional research and stimulate the internal potential of the country. At the same time, it also provides a historical path to solve the ethnic conflicts and contradictions in today's world. According to the psychological characteristics of different nationalities, it is beneficial to actively carry out relevant research, and ethnic integration can also be used as an important index to measure the level of regional emotional change. In short, in daily life, we need to flexibly choose emotion regulation strategies, effectively regulate emotions and be the master of emotions. Although cognitive reappraisal strategy, as an "adaptive" emotion regulation strategy, requires individuals to understand the situations that may induce emotions in a non emotional way (gross & John, 2003), it will also fail in the face of high-intensity emotional situations. The expression inhibition strategy is not effective in all cases. Although inhibition of expression causes sympathetic nerve activation, so that the suppressed emotion can be maintained for a longer time in physiology, long-term inappropriate use will lead to individual physical and mental diseases. However, in the context of Oriental culture that attaches great importance to harmonious relations, the expression inhibition strategy is more socially adaptive, which can provide us with enough time to measure what kind of correct emotional response we should make in the current situation, effectively cover up bad emotions, and help to maintain the stability of interpersonal relations to a certain extent. At present, the relationship between emotion regulation and pathology has become more and more close. The emergence of alexithymia, depression and other problems are inseparable from our own emotion regulation. In the future, we should expand the breadth and depth of research. How to make our research closer to life and how to make the research more ecological validity, so as to better serve mankind, is the ultimate goal we pursue.

National Integration Through Socialist Planning Steven Lewis Sampson, 1980 National Integration Through Socialist Planning Steven L. Sampson, 1984 Romania In The 1980s Daniel N. Nelson, 2019-06-04 Among communist states Romania is in several respects a unique case Romania has been the only Warsaw Pact member to deviate consistently from Soviet foreign policy norms and alone within Eastern Europe to avoid oil imports from the USSR The leadership of Nicolae Ceausescu since 1965 has meanwhile governed through a studious commitment to socio economic centralization and control often reminiscent of Stalinist orthodoxy Intellectual freedom artistic liberty and workers rights have changed little relative to Poland Hungary or the transient Prague Spring Such international and domestic policy distinctions as well as a record of impressive industrial growth necessitate an effort to understand the dynamics of Romania's socio economic and political life This volume is meant to delineate trends in political social and economic life which will constitute dynamic elements for the Romanian system during the 1980s and beyond Contributors all scholars with lengthy research experience in Romania the Balkans and communist states generally have sought to identify factors likely to be influential during this and ensuing decades In that sense this is a predictive volume containing not crystal ball gazing but the careful identification and assessment of trends influencing Romanian foreign and domestic policies economic and political performance and societal transformations By suggesting elements crucial to socio economic and political change in Romania we hope to make observing this intriguing communist state somewhat less haphazard and more systematic Nationalism And Communism In Romania Trond Gilberg, 2019-04-10 This book analyzes Ceausescu's tools and goals that is party structure and how it was transformed in order to implement Ceausescu's concept of modernization which became interchangeable with the concept of building communism Romania and the Quest for European Identity Cristian Cercel, 2019-03-15 Exploring the largely positive representations of Romanian Germans predominating in post 1989 Romanian society this book shows that the underlying reasons for German prestige are strongly connected with Romania's endeavors to become European The election in 2014 of Klaus Iohannis as Romania's president was hailed as evidence that the country chose a European future that Iohannis belonged to Romania's tiny German minority was also considered to have played a part in his success Cercel argues that representations of Germans in Romania descendants of twelfth century and eighteenth century colonists become actually a symbolic resource for asserting but also questioning Romania's European identity Such representations link Romania's much desired European belonging with German presence whilst German absence is interpreted as a sign of veering away from Europe Investigating this case of discursive self colonization and this apparent symbolic embrace of the German Other in Romania the book offers a critical study of the discourses associated with Romania's postcommunist Europeanization to contribute a better understanding of contemporary West East relationships in the European context This fresh and insightful approach will interest postgraduates and scholars interested in Central Eastern and Southeastern

Europe and in German minorities outside Germany It should also appeal to scholars of memory studies and those interested in the study of otherness in general

Aspects of Independent Romania's Economic History with Particular Reference to Transition for EU Accession David Turnock, 2016-04-15 After fifteen years of transition in the former communist states of Central and Eastern Europe it has become clear that for a substantial number the objective of reform and restructuring process is a market system in line with membership of the EU In this study the long term economic transformation of Romania is studied offering a detailed narrative and thematic account of events from the nineteenth to the twenty first centuries From the first steps towards large scale industrialisation begun prior to the First World War through the accelerated pace set by the communist regime after 1945 and the uncertainty following its subsequent collapse in 1989 the book addresses a wide range of pertinent issues that have shaped Romania's economic development The study also offers an interpretation of a distinctive phase in the modernisation of post communist Romania supported by economic historical surveys of the preceding century as a context for recent restructuring on the eve of EU accession This is linked with trends in the region as a whole so that a broad perspective is maintained throughout the book By highlighting Romania's position as one of more backward accession states and considering in what ways its experience during transition differs from the more developed states of the region this study offers a valuable insight into both the history of Romania and its future prospects Furthermore it provides a valuable case study that can be compared and contrasted with other countries who are likewise still grappling with the legacy of a centralised economy and in the process of adopting a more market orientated approach in order to gain EU membership As such this study will be of interest not only to historians and economists but anyone with an interest in the expansion of the European Union

Housing Policies in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union J. A. A. Sillince, 2014-04-08 Housing has enjoyed a high place on the agendas of most socialist countries However this place has not been undisputed and this book examines the internal and external forces which have influenced housing under central planning

European Social Integration and the Roma Cerasela Voiculescu, 2016-10-04 In the field of political sociology and European studies there has long been a discussion on transnational neoliberal development and ethnic groups self governance Notwithstanding there has been limited exploration in relation to modes of knowledge production associated with neoliberal governance of the Other e g ethnic and indigenous groups which capture its idiosyncratic modes of political expression and empowerment Drawing on Michel Foucault's political philosophy this book discusses European social integration as transnational neoliberal governmentality and challenges its epistemologically constituted subaltern subject Neoliberalism is questioned in relation to its programs of securitisation of poverty and authoritarian models of self governance associated with instrumentality of the market In this context the book's rich political historical ethnography develops a new framework for the study of social power Furthermore inspired by Jacques Rancière's radical philosophy European Social Integration and the Roma proposes a new mode of knowledge production about populations excessively subjected to neoliberal governmentality heralding the epistemological decolonisation of the neoliberal subject Presenting an insightful new prospect in critical sociology as well as the conceptualization of power and the application of theories of governmentality this book will appeal to scholars interested in the areas of political sociology and anthropology international relations social and political theory philosophy and post development studies Ceausescu and the Securitate Dennis Deletant, 2016-12-05 First Published in 2017 This book contains Deletant's research and view that an inescapable feature of life in Romania under Ceausescu was the ubiquity of the Securitate or the security police known officially for much of the period as the Department of State Security of the Ministry of the Interior He seeks to right the omission in Romanian literature until now of the mechanism of terror which Stalin used in Romania to enforce his will and about the organisation of the Department of State Security Religion and Magic in Socialist and Post-Socialist Contexts Alexandra Cotofana, James M. Nyce, 2017-03-28 Religion and magic have played important roles within Eastern European societies where social reality and socio political balance may differ greatly from those in the West Although often thought of as being two distinct even antagonistic forces religion and magic find ways to work together By taking on various examples in the multicultural settings of post Soviet and post socialist spaces this collection brings together diverse historical and ethnographic analyses of orthodoxy and heterodoxy from the pre and post 1989 periods studies on the relationship of religious and state institutions to individuals practicing alternative forms of spirituality and examples of borderlands as spaces of ambiguity This volume is at the crossroads of anthropology history as well as cultural memory studies Its archival and field research findings help understand how repurposing religious and magic practices worked into the transition that countries in Eastern Europe and beyond have experienced after the end of the Cold War
