National Need Priorities For Veterinar:

Critical Needs for Research in Veterinary Science National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources, Committee on the National Needs for Research in Veterinary Science, 2005-11-18
Research in veterinary science is critical for the health and well being of animals including humans Food safety emerging infectious diseases the development of new therapies and the possibility of bioterrorism are examples of issues addressed by veterinary science that have an impact on both human and animal health However there is a lack of scientists engaged in veterinary research Too few veterinarians pursue research careers and there is a shortage of facilities and funding for conducting research This report identifies questions and issues that veterinary research can help to address and discusses the scientific expertise and infrastructure needed to meet the most critical research needs The report finds that there is an urgent need to provide adequate resources for investigators training programs and facilities involved in veterinary research

Recommendations for prudent and responsible use of veterinary medicines in aquaculture Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2019-11-21 These Technical Guidelines on the Prudent and Responsible Use of Veterinary Medicines in Aquaculture No 5 Suppl 8 are developed to support Section 9 Aquaculture Development of FAO's Code of Conduct for Responsible Fisheries CCRF and The FAO Action Plan on Antimicrobial Resistance 2016-2020 They also support the international aquatic animal health standards of the World Organisation for Animal Health OIE the food safety standards of the FAO WHO Codex Alimentarius and the One Health platform under the FAO OIE WHO Tripartite Collaboration on antimicrobial resistance AMR Their objective is to assist countries in encouraging the prudent and responsible use of veterinary medicines antimicrobials and other chemotherapeutants in aquaculture production through appropriate government regulation and the promotion and encouragement of awareness and responsible use by the private sector They emphasize among the guiding principles that responsible use of veterinary medicines in aquaculture requires collaboration among all stakeholders and a strong commitment to governance awareness best practices surveillance and research including monitoring of AMR tracking of antimicrobial usage AMU assessing risk in different settings and evaluating strategies to reduce AMR and maintain efficacy of antimicrobials They provide general guidance on the use of veterinary medicines in aquaculture to responsible government agencies private sector aquaculture producers and aquatic animal health professionals
