Foreign Language Teaching and Learning in Chinese Higher Education: Emerging Challenges Wei Xu, Wu Ping, Priscilla Roberts, 2025-10-21 The teaching and learning of foreign languages such as English Japanese French Portuguese Arabic etc have become increasingly important in Chinese higher education over the past decade The application of traditional educational concepts and approaches to the increasingly diverse contexts of foreign language education in the globalized world has created deep seated tensions and challenges for Chinese universities

Research has previously examined the relationship between teaching methods and student performance as well as the impact of globalization on foreign language pedagogy in China. As part of the development of foreign language education, a variety of educational settings have faced culturally specific challenges. These challenges include the need to adapt to evolving technologies, the changing needs of learners, and the changing demands of the job market, etc. China's large population and diverse culture have necessitated the development of effective teaching methods and materials for foreign language instruction.

L2 Selves and Motivations in Asian Contexts Matthew T. Apple, Dexter Da Silva, Terry Fellner, 2016-11-23
This book fills an existing gap in language learning motivation research by examining the applications of current motivational theories and models from WEIRD (Western, educated, industrialized, rich, developed) contexts to educational systems in Asian contexts. All chapters are focused on second language (L2) motivation as it applies to the EFL situation in Asian countries where English is a mandatory subject in school. Themes in the volume cover the use of possible L2 selves as a theoretical model of motivation, the role of teacher motivation and demotivation in non-European educational systems, study abroad motivation among adolescents, cross-cultural differences in learner motivation among Asian cultures, and the influence of native-speakerism on language motivation and cultural identity. This book will appeal to ESL/EFL educators, postgraduate students, researchers, and teacher trainers both inside and outside Asian countries who are interested in research on L2 motivation in general and within Asian contexts in particular.

English In Multicultural Malaysia: Pedagogy And Applied Research (UM Press) Zuraida Mohd Don, Like several other Asian countries, Malaysia uses English for a variety of official, professional, and everyday purposes. Many Malaysians use English alongside their first language, typically Malay, Chinese, or Tamil, but have a particular need for English if they are to succeed in their careers. What is special about this book is that it looks under the surface of the use of English and shows how the teaching of English is tailored to bring this language situation about by applying recent developments in the study of English and of English Language Teaching. It deals with questions such as the use of corpora in language teaching and investigates some of the obstacles young Malaysians face in acquiring the necessary command of English. Issues investigated include the link between lack of proficiency and lack of motivation, the effect of examinations and the washback effect, and the problems of academic writing. Other chapters deal with English in the workplace, including doctor-patient communication, the communication challenges facing tour guides, and gender-based differences in the learning of computer skills. The book will be of great value to anyone professionally involved with global

English glocalisation or language contact including teachers publishers and language planners especially those concerned with the use of global English in Asia The Earnest Worker ,1883
